The Domestic Abroad Diasporas In International Relations:

The Domestic Abroad Latha Varadarajan, 2010-10-08 In the past few decades and across disparate geographical contexts states have adopted policies and initiatives aimed at institutionalizing relationships with their diasporas. These practices which range from creating new ministries to granting dual citizenship are aimed at integrating diasporas as part of a larger global nation that is connected to and has claims on the institutional structures of the home state. Although links both formal and informal between diasporas and their presumptive homelands have existed in the past, the recent developments constitute a far more widespread and qualitatively different phenomenon. In this book Latha Varadarajan theorizes this novel and largely overlooked trend by introducing the concept of the domestic abroad. Varadarajan demonstrates that the remapping of the imagined boundaries of the nation, the visible surface of the phenomenon, is intrinsically connected to the political economic transformation of the state that is typically characterized as neoliberalism. The domestic abroad must therefore be understood as the product of two simultaneous ongoing processes: the diasporic reimagining of the nation and the neoliberal restructuring of the state. The argument unfolds through a historically nuanced study of the production of the domestic abroad in India. The book traces the complex history and explains the political logic of the remarkable transition from the Indian state's guarded indifference toward its diaspora in the period after independence to its current celebrations of the global Indian nation. In doing so, The Domestic Abroad reveals the manner in which the boundaries of the nation and the extent of the authority of the state in India and elsewhere are dynamically shaped by the development of capitalist social relations on both global and national scales.

The Domestic Abroad Latha Varadarajan, 2010 In this text the author proposes a reconsideration of both the meaning of transnationalism and the nature of national and state identity in global politics. In order to do this Varadarajan draws from two literatures that are rarely brought into conversation with IR scholarship: postcolonial theory and historical materialism.

Routledge Handbook of Asian Diaspora and Development Ajaya K. Sahoo, 2021-03-30 This handbook offers an analysis of Asian diaspora and development and explores the role that immigrants living within diasporic and transnational communities play in the development of their host countries and their homeland. Bringing together an array of interdisciplinary scholars from across the world, the handbook is divided into the following sections: Development Potential of Asian Diasporas; Diaspora Homeland and Development; Gender, Generation and Identities; Soft Power; Mobilization and Development; Media Culture and Representations. Presenting cutting edge research on several dimensions of diaspora and development, Routledge Handbook of Asian Diaspora and Development provides a platform for further discussion in the fields of migration studies, diaspora studies, transnational studies, race relations, ethnic studies, gender studies, globalization, Asian studies and research methods.

The Microfoundations of Diaspora Politics Alexandra Délano Alonso, Harris Mylonas, 2021-09-21 The Microfoundations of Diaspora Politics examines the various actors within and beyond the state that participate in the design and implementation of diaspora policies as well as the mechanisms through which diasporas are constructed by governments political parties diaspora entrepreneurs or international organisations Extant theories are often hard pressed to capture the empirical variation and often end up identifying exceptions The multidisciplinary group of contributors in this book theorise these exceptions through three interrelated conceptual moves first by focusing on understudied aspects of the relationships between states as well as organised non state actors and their citizens or co ethnics abroad or at home in cases of return migration Second by examining dyads of origin states and specific diasporic communities differentiated by time of emigration place of residence socio economic status migratory status generation or skills Third by considering migration in its multiple spatial and temporal phases emigration immigration transit return and how they intersect to constitute diasporic identities and policies These conceptual moves facilitate comparative research and help scholars identify the mechanisms connecting structural variables with specific policies by states and other actors as well as responses by the relevant diasporic communities This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies

Producing the Domestic Abroad Latha Varadarajan,2005 The Past as Presence Jayashree Vivekanandan,2025-11-03 This book explores South Asia s postcolonial politics through the lens of circulatory networks of objects people and ideas as the region navigated pivotal historical junctures The contributors reexamine epochal moments in South Asia s international relations including the Second World War the 1947 Partition and the 1971 Liberation War drawing insights from social history memory studies and popular discourses Through thematic case studies the historically informed contributions illuminate the complex entanglements between elite and everyday politics By investigating diverse sites borderlands diaspora communities battlefields memorials visual archives and personal chronicles the volume demonstrates how practices of remembering forgetting and commemorating are intrinsic to the region s ongoing identity formation The folding of time colonial with postcolonial is repeatedly brought home in these contributions This nuanced engagement with the international realm reveals how macro politics and micro histories are inextricably linked in South Asia s postcolonial experience This volume will appeal to students and scholars across multiple fields including International Relations political science history South Asian studies postcolonial studies memory studies and cultural studies Researchers and policy analysts working on South Asia and interested in the intersection of identity politics historical memory and state formation will find the book s theoretical and historical framing of South Asian politics particularly valuable The chapters in this book were originally published in India Review

The Armenian Diaspora and Stateless Power Talar Chahinian,Sossie Kasbarian,Tsolin Nalbantian,2023-11-02 From genocide forced displacement and emigration to the gradual establishment of sedentary and rooted global communities how has the Armenian diaspora formed and maintained a sense of collective identity This book explores the richness and magnitude of the Armenian experience through the 20th century to examine how Armenian diaspora elites and their institutions emerged in the post genocide period and used stateless power to compose forms of social discipline Historians cultural theorists literary critics sociologists political scientists and anthropologists explore how national and transnational institutions were built in far flung sites from Istanbul Aleppo Beirut and Jerusalem to Paris Los Angeles and the American mid west Exploring literary and cultural production as well as the role of religious institutions the book probes the history and experience of the Armenian diaspora through the long 20th century from the role of the fin de si cle migr Armenian press to the experience of Syrian Armenian asylum seekers in the 21st century It shows that a diaspora s statelessness can not only be evidence of its power but also how this stateless power acts as an alternative and complement to the nation state
