Interpersonal Communication Sarah Trenholm, Arthur Jensen, 2008 Interpersonal

Communication introduces students to the core concepts that underpin interpersonal communication in theory and practice. Trenholm and Jensen introduce a 5 point model of Communication Competence in chapter one and use it throughout the book to help keep students focused on the key elements of effective communication. The book draws its examples not only from communication but also from history, psychology and anthropology among others, giving students a richer understanding of the roots of interpersonal communication. Updated throughout, special attention had been paid to bringing more contemporary theory in where relevant, expanding the coverage of computer mediated communication all throughout the book and making the book even more accessible by adding pedagogical features to aid student comprehension.

Cupach, 2025-02-18. Iron Fist in a Velvet Glove offers a comprehensive exposition of the nature of intrinsic wine quality as assessed via sensory perception. The book adopts a broad interdisciplinary approach to elucidate the discernment and communication of wine quality. The broad coverage draws on scholarship from diverse fields including chemistry, neuroscience, enology, psychology, food science, economics, marketing, consumer behavior and philosophy. The dual foci of sensory quality and communication is unique.      Unrequited Lisa A. Phillips, 2024-01-17. The summer Lisa A. Phillips turned thirty, she fell in love with someone who didn't return her feelings. She became obsessed, following him around, calling him compulsively and talking about him endlessly. One desperate morning after she snuck into his apartment building, he picked up a baseball bat to protect himself and threatened to dial 911. Her unrequited love had changed her from a sane, conscientious college teacher and radio reporter into someone she barely recognized: someone who had taken her yearning much too far. In Unrequited, Phillips explores the tremendous force of obsessive love in women's lives. She argues that it needs to be understood, respected and channeled for personal growth, yet it also has the potential to go terribly awry. Interweaving her own story with frank interviews and in-depth research in science, psychology, cultural history and literature, Phillips describes how romantic obsession takes root, grows and strongly influences our thoughts and behaviors. Going beyond images of creepy, fatally attracted psychos, male fantasies of unbridled female desire and the platitudes of self-help books, Phillips offers compelling insights to help any woman who has experienced unrequited, obsessive love and been mystified and troubled by its grip. An ingenious hybrid of memoir, case study, scientific inquiry and intellectual history, not only of unrequited love but of Love full stop with a capital L. Washington Post. There is no cure for the pain of rejection, although researchers are working on it. Until then, Phillips suggests we honor passion by
