Europe and the Middle Ages Edward Peters, 2004 For one two semester undergraduate courses in Medieval History This comprehensive well balanced historical survey of Medieval Europe from Roman imperial provinces to the Renaissance covers all aspects of the history political literary religious intellectual etc with a focus on social and political themes It presents a complete picture of the complex process by which an ecumenical civilization that once ringed the basin of the Mediterranean Sea evolved into three other distinctive civilizations Latin Europe Greek Eastern Europe and Asia Minor and Islam This text differs from others on the subject in that it attempts to abolish traditional clichés regarding the Middle Ages and promotes critical thinking about our own time and society

The Archaeology of Medieval Europe: Eighth to twelfth centuries AD James Graham-Campbell, Magdalena Valor, 2007 The two volumes of The Archaeology of Medieval Europe will together comprise the first complete account of medieval archaeology across Europe Archaeologists from academic institutions in fifteen countries are collaborating to produce these two books of sixteen thematic chapters each In addition every chapter will feature a number of box texts by specialist contributors highlighting sites or themes of particular importance The books will be comprehensively illustrated throughout in both colour and b w including line drawings and specially commissioned maps This ground breaking set which is divided chronologically into two Vol 1 extending from the Eighth to Twelfth Centuries AD and Vol 2 from the Twelfth to Sixteenth Centuries to appear 2008 will enable readers to track the development of different cultures and of regional characteristics throughout the full extent of medieval Catholic Europe In addition to revealing shared contexts and technological developments the complete work will also provide the opportunity for demonstrating the differences that were inevitably present across the Continent from Iceland to Italy and from Portugal to Finland and to study why such differences existed

Texts and Identities in the Early Middle Ages Richard Corradini, 2006 For seven years a collaboration between the Institute for Medieval Studies of the Austrian Academy of Sciences and the Universities of Utrecht Cambridge Leeds and Paris I Sorbonne provided the opportunity for young researchers to discuss and coordinate their work The title of the project and of this volume Texts and identities provides the framework for case studies in different fields of early medieval history They include apparently disparate topics such as historiography and hagiography monastic spaces and memories lay and ecclesiastic legislation as well as liturgy and penance Rather than defining a common field of research the meetings from which these papers have emerged derived their coherence from their common methodological framework This approach combines two elements on the one hand emphasis has been laid on the careful analysis of the transmission of texts and of the manuscript evidence on the other research has focused on the problem of identity or rather of processes of identification including the perception of differences between specific social political and religious communities In the combination of these two approaches the extant texts from the early medieval period are not only seen as mere reflections of ethnic social and cultural identities but also as media that gave meaning to social practices and were often intended to inspire guide change or prevent action directly or indirectly The written texts that have been transmitted to us can be seen as part of a cultural effort to shape the present by means of restructuring the past The often discordant voices of medieval authors allow modern historians to grasp something of the multiplicity of the early medieval world and of the disagreements conflicts idiosyncrasies and individual perceptions among the people who lived in that period Many contributions in this volume propose specific methods for studying changing identities They analyse differences between similar texts over time or specifically changes in texts in the course of their transmission The papers collected in this volume illustrate that texts were integral parts of a world in transformation

Archaeology of Medieval Europe: Eighth to twelfth centuries AD James Graham-Campbell, Magdalena Valor, 2007 The two volumes of The Archaeology of Medieval Europe will together comprise the first complete account of medieval archaeology across Europe Archaeologists from academic institutions in 15 countries are collaborating to produce these two books of 16 thematic chapters each

Atlas of the Medieval World Rosamond McKitterick, 2004 Forged in an age of faith and war and tempered by great statesmen religious leaders and artists medieval civilizations witnessed remarkable transformations Far from being a homogeneous world of knights and castles the era saw a multitude of contrasting and often competing cultures many of which became the foundation stones for the emergence of modern societies From the expansion of Islam across the Mediterranean to the appearance of centralized states and Christian monarchies the Atlas of the Medieval World draws from new archival and archaeological evidence to reveal a period of astonishing cultural vibrancy and political diversity Alongside stunning maps covering nearly a millennium of one of the most formative phases in history hundreds of exquisite pictures of art and architecture accompany expertly written text edited by Rosamond McKitterick Professor of Early Medieval History at Cambridge University to bring an extraordinary period to life as no reference has before The Arab invasions of Europe the empire of Charlemagne the African kingdoms of Songhai and Mali the Crusades the Viking and Mongol invasions the Delhi sultanate and the Tang and Ming empires are just a few of the subjects explained in the Atlas of the Medieval World What's more cultural and economic trends such as the spread of literacy and the growth of towns receive equal attention alongside the emergence of kingdoms and the march of armies to form a comprehensive history of all major societies outside of the Americas during the Middle Ages

Framing the Early Middle Ages Chris Wickham, 2006-11-30 The Roman empire tends to be seen as a whole whereas the early middle ages tends to be seen as a collection of regional histories roughly corresponding to the land areas of modern nation states As a result early medieval history is much more fragmented and there have been few convincing syntheses of socio economic change in the post Roman world since the 1930s In recent decades the rise of early medieval archaeology has also transformed our source base but this has not been adequately integrated into analyses of documentary history in almost any country In Framing the Early Middle Ages Chris Wickham combines documentary and archaeological evidence to create a comparative history of the period 400-800 His analysis embraces each of the regions of the late Roman and immediately post-Roman world from Denmark to Egypt The book concentrates on classic socio-economic themes: state, finance, the wealth and identity of the aristocracy, estate management, peasant society, rural settlement, cities and exchange These give only a partial picture of the period but they frame and explain other developments Earlier syntheses have taken the development of a single region as typical with divergent developments presented as exceptions This book takes all different developments as typical and aims to construct a synthesis based on a better understanding of difference and the reasons for it

International Medieval Bibliography, 2002 Lists articles, notes and similar literature on medieval subjects in journals, Festschriften, conference proceedings and collected essays Covers all aspects of medieval studies within the date range of 450 to 1500 for the entire continent of Europe, the Middle East and North Africa for the period before the Muslim conquest and parts of those areas subsequently controlled by Christian powers Program of the ... Annual Meeting American Historical Association. Meeting, 2002 Program of the ... Annual Meeting of the American Historical Association American Historical Association. Meeting, American Historical Association, 2002 Some programs include also the programs of societies meeting concurrently with the association Book Review Digest, 2002-11 Shepherds of the Lord Carine van Rhijn, 2007 This book is the first study of the rural priesthood, its significance and the statutes written for them in the time of the Carolingians It seeks to trace and explain the rise and emergence in the Carolingian period of both local priests and episcopal statutes that aimed at steering their behaviour It was in the context of Carolingian ideals of reform formulated in court-centred circles from the late eighth century onwards that local priests increasingly came to be seen as those that held the key to turning the local Frankish population into ideal Christians by their word and living example First of all, however, these educators needed to be educated themselves hence the emergence of the episcopal statutes, a new tool to direct the local diocesan clergy into becoming the ideal Shepherds of the Lord that they needed to be Smooth as this process of empire-wide reform theoretically was, however, obstacles lurked both from a top-down episcopal and a grass-roots local perspective on the status, role and function of priests Nevertheless the ninth century saw the emergence of the priesthood and the development of their role as an important group that connected bishops with the lay inhabitants of their dioceses and from a higher-up perspective those who opened up the vast Carolingian countryside to the implementation of the ideal society in the minds of contemporary reformers
