Knowledge Co-Construction in Online Learning Charlotte Nirmalani Gunawardena, Nick V. Flor, Damien M. Sánchez, 2025-04-09 Knowledge Co Construction in Online Learning is a comprehensive foundational resource that explores the study of social construction of knowledge through platforms social dynamics and other aspects of today's technology enhanced education The interactive spaces from formal computer supported collaborative learning settings to informal social media integrative environments that comprise asynchronous online learning offer a rich source of data for analyzing teaching and learning. How then can researchers and designers in educational technology, instructional design, the learning sciences, and beyond most effectively analyze the content and data generated by these complex co-creations of knowledge? Grounded in sociocultural and social constructivist theories of learning and driven by the globally renowned Interaction Analysis Model, this book applies statistical and computational methods to study the group interactions and social networks that yield newly constructed knowledge during virtual learning experiences. Its unique Social Learning Analytic Methods enhance the analysis of social dynamics that support knowledge construction, so often missing from mainstream learning analytics. Holistic and cyclical in its approach to online learning experiences, this essential volume, written for novice and experienced researchers, transcends the field's research paradigm conflicts, blends qualitative and quantitative approaches with new digital media tools, and exemplifies how research questions and designs can incorporate and automate evolving forms of inquiry.

Security Webs and 21st Century Threats Isaac M. Castellano, 2025-08-29 This book introduces a new framework of Security Webs which unifies the traditional state security approach with the human security approach and applies this framework to emerging security concerns in the 21st century. Security Webs offers a framework to examine security threats, responses, and second and third order consequences across a range of actors and the structure to draw in existing findings, theories, and other frameworks into a universal and holistic approach to security. At its core, it clarifies the interconnected nature of security across time and space. Borrowing the concept of food webs from the field of ecology, which maps out how animals and plants gain energy and food, the Security Webs framework allows for an examination of the security of an actor, be it a nation, state, non-state actor, or an individual, where each actor gains strength and security but likewise is also threatened. The book profiles several of the emerging security threats and illustrates how the Security Webs framework can help us study these threats, which include climate change, weak state capacity, and political extremism, all of which pose significant threats to states, non-state actors, and individuals alike. Bridging the divide between the traditionalist and the human security camps, the book embraces the complexity that not only is international security and offers a framework applicable to every actor but also when applied, creates a clear picture of security threats and arrangements. This book will be of interest to students of security studies, human security, environmental security, and International Relations.
