The Media In Transitional Democracies:

The Media in Transitional Democracies Katrin Voltmer, 2013-07-10 The last quarter of a century has seen an unprecedented wave of democratization around the globe In these transitions from authoritarian rule to a more democratic order the media have played a key role both by facilitating but frequently also inhibiting democratic practices to take root This book provides an accessible and systematic introduction to the media in transitional democracies It analyses the problems that occur when transforming the media into independent institutions that are able to inform citizens and hold governments to account The book covers the following topics normative conceptions of media and democracy the role of the past in the transition process the internet as a new space for democratic change the persistence of political interference in emerging democracies the interlocking power of media markets and political ownership the challenges to journalistic professionalism in post authoritarian contexts the role of the media in divided societies The book takes a global view by exploring the interplay of political and media transitions in different pathways of democratization that have taken place in Eastern Europe Latin America Africa and Asia It will be of interest to advanced students and scholars who want a better understanding of the media outside established Western democracies The book will also be of great value to policymakers and activists who are involved in strengthening the media in transitional democracies Guidelines for Election Broadcasting in Transitional Democracies Patrick Merloe, 1994 3 1 Types of access The Media and Human Rights in Southern Africa ,1994 Critical Analysis of the Media Law in Zimbabwe Nkosi Ndlela, 2003 Arab National Media and Political Change Fatima El-Issawi, 2016-11-08 This book examines the evolution of national Arab media and its interplay with political change particularly in emerging democracies in the context of the Arab uprisings Investigated from a journalistic perspective this research addresses the role played by traditional national media in consolidating emerging democracies or in exacerbating their fragility within new political contexts Also analyzed are the ways journalists report about politics and transformations of these media industries drawing on the international experiences of media in transitional societies This study builds on a field investigation led by the author and conducted within the project Arab Revolutions Media Revolutions covering Libya Tunisia and Egypt Reclaiming the Media Bart Cammaerts, Nico Carpentier, 2007 Against the claims of increasing sexualisation of culture one truism is constantly rehearsed that women have little taste for pornography This book offers an understanding of women s pleasures in sexually explicit materials by focusing on the production and consumption of For Women magazine Political Representation and Participation in Transitional Democracies Elfar Loftsson, Yonhyok Choe, 2003 This volume describes the transformation of the three Baltic States to liberal democracies and discusses to what extent the new institutions that have come into existence enjoy popular support It is an empirical study based on a survey conducted in 1999 to test hypotheses derived from representation and participation theories Each chapter contains a discussion of the theoretical implications found in the Baltic context The three Baltic societies are on the verge of a transition towards a more consolidated and stable system in which the rule of law is widely accepted as a democratic principle However there are nostalgic sentiments among those who were deeply involved in the Soviet system and among those who have been disadvantaged by the new system Media and Democratic Governance in Kenya Koki Muli, Peter Aling'o, 2007 Media in South Africa After Apartheid Anthony A. Olorunnisola, 2006 A collection of essays that provides an evaluation of the transition experience of media and correlate institutions in the decade following the introduction of a multiracial democracy in South Africa The contributors from inside and outside South Africa assess the transition experience from multiple perspectives Media in Process Sai Felicia Krishna-Hensel, 2016-09-19 The post communist development of media systems has been uneven in the countries of the region Television and newspapers together with the emergence of social media have had great influence on the political debate in various countries Ownership of the media has been a factor in many instances The integration of traditionally isolated Central Eastern Europe into larger worldwide trends has fundamentally changed the way we look at the media in this region This volume proposes to address the transition of the media and communication industries in the contemporary period The contributions discuss among other things the obstacles that still remain for the media to play an effective watchdog role in the new democracies and whether the advent of the Internet and social media has helped or hindered the transformation to a powerful independent media The discussion further examines whether advertising agencies have targeted post communist citizens differently than those in Western European countries and if the media markets in the post communist region are fundamentally different than in Western Europe and North America A second focus of the volume is the media coverage of social issues like domestic violence which is intended to draw attention to these issues and influence policy in a more aware and open society This establishes the trend of post communist media following the example of western media practice The implications of the Central European media transformation for the newly transforming media markets in the post Soviet space suggest a new phase in the development of the medium The impact of global influences on regional expression is an important aspect of the political and social changes that are underway This volume makes an important interdisciplinary contribution in examining the development of the media
