you for lunch then next day you've already mini meal prepped. Generally though meal prepping refers to preparing 3-7 days' worth of food at a time. Think of it like making your lunches for the week all at once instead of making your lunch every day. You can use this same technique for breakfast, lunch, dinner, and snacks. Meal prepping involves no extra waste and reduces time spent outside your home, whether that's planning a diet or a budget. When making your daily menu, the first question to ask is, "What will I eat tomorrow?" Make meals without having to do it every day. Meal prepping is not for everyone. It is good for those who value convenience and for more than one person. With meal prepping, you generally eat the same thing for a few days in a row so you don't eat leftovers or get bored with food. Meal prepping is not for everyone. If having nutritious food is what you're maximizing, your time and budget is more valuable than eating something different every day. Meal prepping is not for everyone. I've generally not seen meal prepping for the individual or maybe one other person do a whole family. Meal prepping for a whole family would be quite difficult but the result would be a meal plan that is stored in the refrigerator for a slow day in the week. In addition to the way food is packed, the individual nuances of your refrigerator can impact the usefulness of your refrigerator. Make sure the food is acceptable in terms of texture and flavor. Always begin with the refrigerator guidelines to be sure the food is safe. Always begin with your own preferences. In general, I don't like to eat more than five days' worth of food at a time. I find that by following these guidelines, the food will last longer.
