

grease used inside the power head must be gasoline soluble.

19. A carburetor is best cleaned by disassembling it and soaking the parts in a commercial carburetor cleaner. Never soak gaskets and rubber parts in these cleaners. Never use wire to clean carburetor jets and air passages. Use compressed air to blow out the carburetor passages.

20. Most of all, take your time and do the job right. Do not forget that a newly rebuilt engine must be correctly broken-in, just like a new one.

ENGINE OPERATION

All Mercury Sport Jet models are equipped with a 2-stroke marine engine. During this discussion, assume that the crankshaft is rotating counterclockwise in Figure 2. As the piston travels downward, a transfer port (A, Figure 2) between the crankcase and cylinder is uncovered. The exhaust gases leave the cylinder through the exhaust port (B, Figure 2), which is also opened by the downward movement of the piston. A lightly compressed, fresh fuel-air charge travels from the crankcase (C, Figure 2) to the cylinder through the transfer port (A) as the port opens. Since the incoming charge is under pressure, it rushes into the cylinder quickly and helps to scavenge (expel) the exhaust gases from the previous combustion.

Figure 3 illustrates the next phase of the cycle. As the crankshaft continues to rotate, the piston moves upward, closing the exhaust and transfer ports. As the piston continues upward, the air-fuel mixture in the cylinder is compressed. Notice also that a vacuum is being created in the crankcase at the same time. Further upward piston movement uncovers the intake port (D, Figure 3). A fresh fuel-air charge is then drawn into the crankcase through the intake port because of the vacuum created by the upward piston movement.

The third phase is shown in Figure 4. As the piston approaches top dead center (TDC), the spark plug fires, igniting the compressed fuel-air mixture. The piston is then driven downward by the expanding gases.

When the top of the piston uncovers the exhaust port, the fourth phase begins. The exhaust gases leave the cylinder through the exhaust port. As the piston continues downward, the intake port is closed and the mixture in the crankcase is compressed in preparation for the next cycle.
