related to Abraham Maslow's hierarchy of needs. It shows how organizations that use bottom of the pyramid motivational levers run the risk of inadvertently keeping their employees at the wrong end of the motivational spectrum. The article then explores how spiritually intelligent team members identify with and feel engaged by the broader mission of their organization. It overviews Danah Zohar's book SQ: Spiritual Intelligence: The Ultimate Intelligence and explains how negative drivers such as fear, greed, anger, etc. often lead to destructive behavior while project managers who lead according to spiritual intelligence result in more positive behaviors. The article concludes by listing do's and don'ts when tapping into teams' collective spiritual intelligence. Accompanying the article is a sidebar listing the 12 indicators of spiritual development.

The Apocalypse Explained According to the Spiritual Sense in which the Arcana There Predicted But Heretofore Concealed are Revealed Emanuel Swedenborg, 1928      Spiritual Intelligence and Public Servant Leadership Sheila Renae Trapp, 2013-03

Spiritual intelligence is considered the ultimate intelligence; it generates positive attitudes and influences the ability to assist others to overcome suffering. However, public service organizations have largely eliminated the spiritual and moral alignments they were founded upon. Houston Freeman Feldman (2008) states that the lack of knowledge of Spiritual Intelligence is a worthy concept to research. Bringing the concept of Spiritual Intelligence further into the body of knowledge is an important part of this published study.
