A System of Rhetoric (Classic Reprint) C. W. Bardeen, 2015-07-11 Excerpt from A System of Rhetoric In presenting to the public a new text book on Rhetoric the author asks attention to these features as characteristic 1 It is kept in the foreground throughout that the fundamental law of rhetoric is adaptation that the form of discourse like the fashion of clothing has no intrinsic beauty but is or is not artistic as it does or does not produce the effect designed at the time and under the circumstances 2 That the student may look on rhetoric as an art not like trigonometry which he may use but like arithmetic which he must use its most important laws are developed in the practical treatment of Conversation and Letter Writing The boy who does not care to be taught speech making and verse writing may be glad of help to feel at ease among strangers and to write a business letter To this is added instruction in Narration and Description These are forms of composition in which the essential element is not literary taste but personal experience Any man may be called upon to tell or to write for the newspaper what he has done or seen and every man should be able to do it well About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
