Cognitive and Behavioral Abnormalities

of Pediatric Diseases Ruth D. Nass, Yitzchak Frank, 2010 This book provides a detailed account of intellectual other neuropsychological and behavioral manifestations of general pediatric diseases. The conditions discussed include the whole range of pediatric diseases, genetic syndromes, other congenital conditions, metabolic, endocrine, gastrointestinal, infectious, immunologic, toxic, trauma, and neoplastic, as well as sensory disabilities including deafness and blindness. Although the book is not intended to discuss cognitive and behavioral manifestations of conditions usually considered to be primary neurological disease, some of those including cerebral palsy, muscular dystrophy, myotonic dystrophy, and epilepsy are included. Where possible, a translational approach is used linking the behavioral and cognitive manifestations of these conditions to the underlying structural, chemical, or genetic abnormalities and their effect on the brain and in turn on behavior and cognition. At the same time included are significant psychosocial factors. Together those factors have a major effect on patients' performance including school performance and on their families. This book is unique in its extensive coverage of the major pediatric conditions and of the detailed neurological, neuropsychological, and behavioral aspects of each condition.

Students at Risk of School Failure José Jesús Gázquez, José Carlos Núñez, 2018-10-18 The main objective of this Research Topic is to determine the conditions that place students at risk of school failure identifying student and context variables. In spite of the fact that there is currently little doubt about how one learns and how to teach in some countries of the developed world, there is still a high rate of school failure. Although the term school failure is a very complex construct insofar as its causes, consequences, and development from the field of educational psychology, the construct student engagement has recently gained special interest in an attempt to deal with the serious problem of school failure. School engagement builds on the anatomy of the students' involvement in school and describes their feelings, behaviors, and thoughts about their school experiences. So engagement is an important component of students' school experience with a close relationship to achievement and school failure. Children who self-set academic goals attend school regularly and on time, behave well in class, complete their homework and study at home are likely to interact adequately with the school social and physical environments and perform well in school. In contrast, children who miss school are more likely to display disruptive behaviors in class, miss homework frequently, exhibit violent behaviors on the playground, fail subjects, be retained, and if the behaviors persist, quit school. Moreover, engagement should also be considered as an important school outcome eliciting more or less supportive reactions from educators. For example, children who display school engaged behaviors are likely to receive motivational and instructional support from their teachers. The opposite may also be true. But what makes student engage more or less? The relevant literature indicates that personal variables e.g. sensory motor, neurodevelopmental, cognitive, motivational, emotional, behavior problems, learning difficulties, addictions, social and/or cultural variables e.g. negative family conditions, child abuse, cultural deprivation, ethnic conditions, immigration, or school variables e.g. coexistence at school, bullying, cyberbullying may concurrently hinder engagement preventing the student from acquiring the learnings in the same conditions as the rest of the classmates

Emotion Regulation in Neurodevelopmental Disorders:

Current Understanding and Treatments Ru Ying Cai, Andrea C. Samson, Mirko Uljarevic, 2024-08-12 Emotion regulation allows people to influence and modify the intensity duration and types of emotions experienced and how these emotions are expressed The capacity to regulate emotions increases and becomes more sophisticated throughout child development due to the maturation of prefrontal brain regions involved in executive functioning Emotion regulation is a transdiagnostic process that plays a pivotal role in the development and maintenance of internalizing and externalizing symptoms such as anxiety depression or problematic behaviors Emotion dysregulation is a prominent feature of neurodevelopmental conditions such as autism spectrum disorder ASD and attention deficit hyperactivity disorder ADHD Furthermore emotion dysregulation has been suggested to play a vital role in less commonly diagnosed neurogenetic disorders such as Phelan McDermid Syndrome germline heterozygous PTEN mutations and 22q11.2 deletion syndrome Fortunately emotion regulation processes are amenable to treatment in various clinical and non clinical populations
