1. Introduction

Unity of Command is a strategy game that lets you command the Red Army or Wehrmacht forces and their allies during the crucial Eastern Front campaign of 1942-43. This is the campaign that culminated in the famous Battle of Stalingrad, an event that marked a turning point in the war.

The initial blow delivered by German armored spearheads then proved devastating. The German campaign began with a seemingly unstoppable string of German victories. But soon in the heat of that victories' success, cracks were beginning to show.

German plans for this campaign centered on capturing the oil-rich region of the Caucasus. Stalingrad, the city that would eventually become the Soviet focus, was nearly overlooked in the original plans prepared by the OKH (German High Command of the Army).

Soviets were on the defense strategically at the time, but the Stavka (Soviet High Command) recognized enemy intentions and placed the bulk of its strength around Moscow. This helped the Germans as relatively thin forces remained to contend with the sprawling, German offensive to the south.

As they advanced onward, the Germans carved an enormous bridge they could never hope to hold with German forces alone. To fill the gaps, they enlisted help from the armies of their Axis allies: Italy, Romania and Hungary.

The fast moving nature of the campaign also made it difficult to provide units with fuel, ammunition and other vital supplies. Time and again, German columns had to stop

INTRODUCTION

It is in these circumstances during the fall of 1942 that the German offensive bogged down in the face of stiffening Soviet resistance. Their pace of advance slowed to a crawl. And the attention of the entire world became fixated on the desperate battle raging in the burning city of Stalingrad.

When Soviets finally counterattacked in November of 1942, the pace of their attack changed the strategic situation overnight. The besiegers became the besieged. The German 6th Army at Stalingrad was encircled and trapped, and the entire southern wing of the German Eastern Front threatened with collapse.

June 4, 1942

Soviets then mounted a series of strategic offensives that completely changed the southern Axis armies along the Don river. This advance threatened the Germans with an easy victory and for a while an entire group of German Armies fought for its very survival in this sudden and dramatic reversal of fortunes.

Then, in one final devastating strike, German under von Manstein counterattacked at Khar'kov and restored the situation. Eventually, the armies finally came to rest on almost identical lines where the campaign started almost a year earlier.
