Northern Ireland Colin Knox, Padraic Quirk, 2016-05-31 This book examines the role played by one important external stakeholder Atlantic Philanthropies a limited life foundation in helping to build peace and promote reconciliation in Northern Ireland Northern Ireland is now referred to as a post conflict society largely due to the absence of political violence and relatively stable political institutions These are necessary but insufficient conditions for what Galtung has described as positive peace which requires a more fundamental review of the structural inequalities that contributed to the conflict in the first place Using detailed case studies the authors illustrate the role played by voluntary and community sector groups funded by Atlantic Philanthropies in influencing the public policy agenda and securing long term systemic changes They also critique the work of Atlantic as a pay to play organization whose original mission moved from funding the higher education sector on the island of Ireland to become a key foundation with a significant role in the peace process

Building Peace Craig Zelizer, Robert A. Rubinstein, 2009 Even though international peacebuilding has rapidly expanded in the last two decades to respond to more multi faceted and complex conflicts the field has lagged behind in documenting the impact and success of projects To help address this gap the Alliance for Peacebuilding one of the leading networks in the field has brought together 13 stories of innovative peacebuilding practices from around the world in Building Peace While the projects covered are diverse in nature together they demonstrate the significant impact of peacebuilding work Contributors created new institutions to prevent and manage conflicts at the local or national levels helped restore relationships in conflict affected communities and empowered citizens to work for positive change in their societies across ethnic religious and political divides It's clear that there is no quick fix for violence but this volume will go a long way in providing inspiration and practical tools for policymakers academics and practitioners who seek to make significant and valuable contributions towards achieving peace

Building States While Fighting Terror Peter J. Quaranto,2008 This report suggests that US policy in Somalia since 2001 represents many strong trends in US security thinking For instance there has been a revived emphasis on state stability and conversely a problematisation of state weakness as a threat US officials have focused on failed states such as Somalia as havens and recruiting grounds for terrorists Correspondingly state building has been declared a key tactic of counter terrorism US officials have argued that the best long term defence against terrorism is the existence of functional central governments especially those willing to cooperate with Washington Therefore the US State Department recently stated that the two pillars of state building and counter terrorism drive US policy in Somalia McCormack 2006 The purpose of this report is to consider the interaction of those pillars in policymaking and especially their application at the scene of action
