Catholic Horror and Rhetorical Dialectics Gavin F. Hurley, 2024-06-15 Identifying an important subgenre of horror literature this book argues that Catholic horror fiction works distinctively to inspire the philosophical theological and spiritual imaginations of readers from all backgrounds and faith traditions Hurley analyzes four novels that are foundational to the genre of Catholic horror J K Huysmans's L'Assommoir 1891 Robert Hugh Benson's The Light Invisible 1903 and A Mirror of Shalott 1907 and William Peter Blatty's The Exorcist 1971 Putting these texts in conversation with the classical liberal arts the book shows how Catholic horror fiction coheres in a commitment to dialectical thinking that aims both to resolve and to accommodate contrasting world views Given its use of this methodology Catholic horror literature is uniquely positioned to draw readers into a contemplative mindset In presenting ghost stories tales of possession and narratives about evil Catholic horror invites audiences to confront and reflect on profound existential questions questions about the line between life and death the nature of being and the meaning of reality

This Thing of Darkness Richard Paul Hamilton, Margaret Söns, Breen, 2004

Written across the disciplines of art history literature philosophy sociology and theology the ten essays comprising the collection all insist on multidimensional definitions of evil Taking its title from a moment in Shakespeare's Tempest when Prospero acknowledges his responsibility for Caliban this collection explores the necessarily ambivalent relationship between humanity and evil To what extent are a given society's definitions of evil self serving Which figures are marginalized in the process of identifying evil How is humanity itself implicated in the production of evil Is evil itself something fundamentally human These questions indicative of the kinds of issues raised in this collection seem all the more pressing in light of recent world events The ten essays were originally presented at the First Global Conference on Perspectives on Evil and Human Wickedness held in March 2000 in Lady Margaret Hall Oxford University
