The Government Role in Civilian Technology ,1992 Policies, Programs and People that Shape Innovation in Housing Andrew P. McCoy,Andrew R.

Sanderford,2015-06-01 Businesses consumers industry groups and governments understand the importance of innovation and the innovation process for continued economic success and improvements in quality of life However innovation remains an opaque topic A paradox exists in housing at large using innovation is vital yet accounting for the value to individual organizations remains a challenge This paradox is supported by a landscape that includes a sizeable graveyard of failed attempts at innovation on grand and small scales This book seeks to decrease the opacity of innovation processes in residential construction and housing Along with the next book in the collection this book addresses key questions pertinent to the potential for widespread diffusion of green buildings and for improvements in community sustainability The overarching purpose of this book is to provide context and foundation for later books in the collection and to assist readers in peeling back the complex layers of innovation in housing and residential construction

The Peacekeeping Economy Lloyd J. Dumas,2011-01-01 The idea that military strength is virtually synonymous with security is deeply entrenched and widely held But while the threat or use of military force may sometimes be necessary it cannot keep us as safe as we would be by building relationships that replace hostility with a sense of mutual purpose and mutual gain Economic relationships says Lloyd J Dumas can offer a far more effective and far less costly means of maintaining security After defining the right kind of economic relationship one that is balanced and nonexploitative emphasizes development and minimizes environmental damage Dumas then addresses some practical concerns in establishing and maintaining these relationships He also considers the practical problems of the transition from military based security arrangements to economic peacekeeping and the effects of demilitarized security on economic development and prosperity Defense Conversion DIANE Publishing Company,1994-05 Discusses how to find productive civilian uses for the resources and people formerly devoted to the nation's defense Focuses on how R D institutions can be more responsive to civilian technology development Examines how certain proposed national missions might replace defense in contributing to the country's repository of technology high value added jobs and gross domestic product Charts and tables Science, Technology, and the Federal Government ,1993 Defense Conversion ,1993 USITC Publication ,1993 Paper ,1998 The Cumulative Book Index ,1994 A world list of books in the English language World Trade and Arbitration Materials ,1994 National Laboratories as Business Incubators and Region Builders Ann R. Markusen,1995 Carbon Capture and Storage Including Coal-fired Power Plants Todd P. Carington,2010 Nationally recognised studies and our contacts with a diverse group of industry representatives non governmental organisations and academic researchers show that key barriers to CCS deployment include 1 underdeveloped and costly CO2 capture technology and 2 regulatory and legal uncertainties over CO2 capture injection and storage Among the key technological barriers are a lack of experience in capturing significant amounts of CO2 from power plants and the significant cost of capturing CO2 particularly from existing coal fired power plants which are the single largest source of CO2 emissions in the United States Compounding these technological issues are regulatory and legal uncertainties including uncertainty regarding liability for CO2 leakage and ownership of CO2 once injected According to the IPCC the National Academy of Sciences and other knowledgeable authorities another barrier is the absence of a national strategy to control CO2 emissions emissions trading plan CO2 emissions tax or other mandatory control of CO2 emissions without which the electric utility industry has little incentive to capture and store its CO2 emissions Moreover according to key agency officials the absence of a national strategy has also deterred their agencies from addressing other important practical issues such as resolving how stored CO2 would be treated in a future CO2 emissions trading plan Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,1992 Science & Government Report ,1995 Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists ,1993-12 Technological Innovation, Corporate R&D Alliances and Organizational Learning Wayne G.
