

Chapter 12

Segment Reporting and Decentralization

Solutions to Questions

12-1 In a decentralized organization, decision-making authority isn't confined to a few top executives, but rather is spread throughout the organization with lower-level managers and other employees empowered to make decisions.

12-2 The benefits of decentralization include: (1) freeing top managers to focus on strategy, higher-level decision making, and coordinating activity; (2) improving operational decision making, since lower-level managers often have better information about local conditions; (3) enabling quicker response to customer needs; (4) training lower-level managers to take on greater responsibility; and (5) providing greater motivation and job satisfaction for lower-level managers.

12-3 A cost center manager has control over cost, but not revenue or investment funds. A profit center manager has control over both cost and revenue. An investment center manager has control over cost and revenue and investment funds.

12-4 A segment is any part or activity of an organization about which a manager seeks cost, revenue, or profit data. Examples of segments include departments, operations, sales territories, divisions, product lines, and so forth.

12-5 Under the contribution approach, costs are assigned to a segment if and only if the costs are traceable to the segment. Common costs are not allocated to segments under the contribution approach.

12-6 A traceable cost of a segment is a cost that arises specifically because of the existence of that segment. If the segment were eliminated, the cost would disappear. A common cost, by contrast, is a cost that supports more than one segment, but is not traceable in whole or in part to any one of the segments. If the departments of a company are treated as segments, then examples of the traceable costs of a department would include the salary of the department's supervisor, depreciation of machines used exclusively by the department, and the costs of supplies used by the department. Examples of common costs would include the salary of the general counsel of the entire company, the lease cost of the headquarters building, corporate image advertising, and periodic depreciation of machines shared by several departments.

12-7 The contribution margin is the difference between sales revenue and variable expenses. The segment margin is the amount remaining after deducting traceable fixed expenses from the contribution margin. The contribution margin is useful as a planning tool for many decisions, including those in which fixed costs don't change. The segment margin is useful in assessing the overall profitability of a segment.

12-8 If common costs were allocated to segments, then the costs of segments would be overstated and their margins would be understated. As a consequence, some segments may appear to be unprofitable and managers may be tempted to eliminate them. If a segment were eliminated because of the existence of arbitrarily allocated common costs, the overall profit of the increasing volume of acquired data makes it impossible to utilize them in full. Equally important the visual approaches to medical image analysis are known to suffer from a lack of reproducibility. A significant research effort is devoted to developing algorithms for processing the wealth of data available and extracting the relevant information in a computerized and quantitative fashion. Medical imaging and image analysis are interdisciplinary areas combining electrical computer and biomedical engineering, computer science, mathematics, physics, statistics, biology, medicine, and other fields. Medical imaging and computer vision interestingly enough have developed and continue developing somewhat independently. Nevertheless, bringing them together promises to benefit both of these fields. We were enthusiastic when the organizers of the 2004 European Conference on Computer Vision (ECCV) allowed us to organize a satellite workshop devoted to medical image analysis.

Computer Vision and Mathematical Methods in Medical and Biomedical Image Analysis Milan Sonka,Ioannis A. Kakadiaris,Jan Kybic,2004-10-04 Medical imaging and medical image analysis are rapidly developing While medical imaging has already become a standard of modern medical care medical image analysis is still mostly performed visually and qualitatively The ev
