of reproduction is appropriately suited for streaming given the ambiguities of embodiment and scope of substantial part. Conversely the fair dealing defence in Australia cannot be used aptly to defend end users acts of streaming digital content because end users who use streaming to access digital content can rarely rely on the defence of fair dealing for the purposes of criticism or review news reporting parody or satire or research or study. When considering a temporary copy exception end users are at risk of being held liable for infringement when using streaming to access a website that contains infringing digital content even if they lack any knowledge about the content's infringing nature. Moreover the grey areas in circumventing geo blocking have made end users hesitant to access websites through streaming because it is not clear whether technological protection measures apply to geo blocking. End users have a severe lack of knowledge about whether they can use circumvention methods such as virtual private networks to access streaming websites without being held liable for copyright infringement. Despite the intricacies between copyright and access to digital content the recently implemented website blocking laws have emboldened copyright owners while suppressing end users access to digital content. This is because the principles of proportionality and public interest have been given less attention when determining website blocking injunctions.

Media Audiences John L. Sullivan, 2019-07-24 Whether we are watching TV surfing the Internet listening to our iPods or reading a novel we all engage with media as an audience. Despite the widespread use of this term in our popular culture the meaning of audience is complex and it has undergone significant historical shifts as new forms of mediated communication have developed from print telegraphy and radio to film television and the Internet. Media Audiences: Effects, Users, Institutions and Power 2nd Edition explores the concept of media audiences from four broad perspectives as victims of mass media as market constructions and commodities as users of media and as producers and subcultures of mass media. The goal of the text is for students to be able to think critically about the role and status of media audiences in contemporary society reflecting on their relative power in relation to institutional media producers.
