Engendering Transformative Change in International Development Gillian Fletcher, 2018-09-21 The Sustainable Development Goals were launched in 2015 with grand ambitions for ending poverty protecting the planet and ensuring prosperity for all with no one left behind However these goals will be impossible to achieve without addressing inequity inequality marginalisation and exclusion related to gender and to other intersecting social hierarchies linked to deeply emotional culturally bound norms and judgements of worth This book asks readers to consider issues of knowledge power and effectiveness emphasising the limits of taking a categorical approach to gender and other social hierarchies and the importance of process in what is known about generating transformative social change Engendering Transformative Thinking and Practice in International Development draws on a range of real world examples which demonstrate both the limitations of the frameworks currently in use and the very real possibilities for change when the intersecting social hierarchies that sustain and create inequity and inequality are challenged This book brings together theoretical perspectives on social change gender intersectionality and forms of knowledge concluding with a set of proposals for revitalising a change agenda that recognises and engages with intersectionality and practical wisdom Perfect for students and scholars of social change gender and development this book will also be useful for practitioners looking for new ideas to help to generate social change

Tracing Early Agriculture in the Highlands of New Guinea Tim Denham, 2018-06-28 In this book historical narratives chart how people created forms of agriculture in the highlands of New Guinea and how these practices were transformed through time The intention is twofold to clearly establish New Guinea as a region of early agricultural development and plant domestication and to develop a contingent practice based interpretation of early agriculture that has broader application to other regions of the world The multi disciplinary record from the highlands has the potential to challenge and change long held assumptions regarding early agriculture globally which are usually based on domestication Early agriculture in the highlands is charted by an exposition of the practices of plant exploitation and cultivation Practices are ontologically prior because they ultimately produce the phenotypic and genotypic changes in plant species characterised as domestication as well as the social and environmental transformations associated with agriculture They are also methodologically prior because they emplace plants in specific historico geographic contexts
