Successful early childhood program transitions involve the coordination and continuation of developmental and comprehensive services from birth through age eight. This guide is designed to facilitate the successful transition of children and their families into and out of Early Head Start and Head Start programs and assists in planning for daily transitions to home or child care settings. Section 1 of the guide Skill Based Training contains four Head Start staff training modules that liken transition planning to traveling on a railroad system. Module 1 Getting on Track with Transition Planning provides a framework for effective planning with activities to set goals based on assessments of current practices, identify key partners and create a team. Module 2 Bringing Families on Board for Planning allows staff to work as a team to improve outcomes for transitioning children and families with activities to facilitate obtaining and sharing information to develop individualized transition plans. Module 3 Making Connections with Other Programs involves assessing and strengthening the relationships among sending and receiving programs. Module 4 Accessing Services through Community Linkages encourages staff and parents to identify services gaps with activities to create an interagency planning team and develop strategies for gaining and sustaining the support of staff and parents. Each module contains workshop and coaching activities, outcomes, key concepts, background information, preparation notes, ideas for applying skills and resources, and handouts. Section 2 of the guide Informational Resources includes summaries on transition planning, comprehensive services and effective transition practices, program profiles describing promising practices, tools to help in organizing planning, and an annotated list of 24 resources.

Author: KB     Diversity and Change in Early Canadian Women's Writing Jennifer Chambers, 2009-10-02

Diversity and Change in Early Canadian Women's Writing is a collection of nine essays thematically arranged dedicated to the works of women writing between 1828 and 1914. It is for all those readers who were certain that there had to be diverse, interesting, socially relevant voices in early Canadian women's writing. It is equally for sceptics who will find that early Canada is not bereft of women writers or of writing of substance. When Lorraine McMullen published the collection of essays Re-discovering Our Foremothers in 1990, she considered the field in its infancy. As keen as literary historians and critics have been to assess the contributions of women to Canada's early cultural scene, this collection moves beyond listing which women were writing in early Canada and brings together a study of their journalistic and literary works. For a nation caught up in projects to enhance nation building and concerned with the development of its national literature, the essays reconnect with early literary works by women. Eighteen years after McMullen's this collection shows the progression along the path that she initiated. Working with theories of genre, gender, socio-politics, literature, history and drama, the essayists make cases not only for the women writing but also for the literary voices they created to work for diversity and social change in Canada.
