Primary Care Optometry Theodore Grosvenor, Theodore P. Grosvenor, 2007 An ideal resource for anyone involved in eye care students opticians optometrists and ophthalmologists this resource provides comprehensive coverage of the diagnosis and management of common eye and vision problems Key topics include procedures for myopia control or reduction as well as the co management of refractive surgery and ocular disease This book is also an excellent guide to detecting systemic diseases that can have an effect on the visual system Complete coverage of key optometric skills including how to take a comprehensive ocular and health history how to thoroughly investigate ocular health status how to perform a thorough refractive and binocular vision examination how to prescribe corrective lenses and or vision therapy how to co manage refractive surgery and ocular disease Comprehensive discussions of the theory behind each optometric procedure An emphasis on current non surgical methods of myopia control and reduction as well as methods of caring for patients with impaired vision A logical organization divided into three main parts anomalies of refraction and binocular vision optometric examination and diagnosis and management In depth coverage of topics that include objective refraction subjective refraction binocular vision examination corneal topography measurement ophthalmic lenses geriatric optometry vision impairment control of myopia and management of ocular diseases in a primary care optometric practice An increased emphasis on changes in vision likely to occur in older patients including age related vision loss Expanded coverage of hot topics in optometry such as diabetes and macular degeneration Four new chapters covering Hyperopia Age Related Vision Problems Age Related Vision Loss and Care of the Vision Impaired Patient The user friendly layout now features more tables boxes and illustrations to speed you to important information A new full color design offers a wealth of vivid illustrations that clearly depict important procedures concepts and techniques

Channel-conveyance capacity, channel change, and sediment transport in the lower Puyallup, White, and Carbon Rivers, western Washington Jonathan A. Czuba, Christiana R. Czuba, Christopher S. Magirl, Frank D. Voss, 2010-12-01 Draining the volcanic glaciated terrain of Mount Rainier Washington the Puyallup White and Carbon Rivers convey copious volumes of water and sediment down to Commencement Bay in Puget Sound Recent flooding in the lowland river system has renewed interest in understanding sediment transport and its effects on flow conveyance throughout the lower drainage basin Bathymetric and topographic data for 156 cross sections were surveyed in the lower Puyallup River system by the U S Geological Survey USGS and were compared with similar datasets collected in 1984 Regions of significant aggradation were measured along the Puyallup and White Rivers Between 1984 and 2009 aggradation totals as measured by changes in average channel elevation were as much as 7 5 6 5 and 2 feet on the Puyallup White and Carbon Rivers respectively These aggrading river sections correlated with decreasing slopes in riverbeds where the rivers exit relatively confined sections in the upper drainage and enter the relatively unconstricted valleys of the low gradient Puget Lowland Measured grain size distributions from each riverbed showed a progressive fining downstream

Analysis of stage discharge relations at streamflow gaging stations along rivers draining Mount Rainier demonstrated the dynamic nature of channel morphology on river courses influenced by glaciated volcanic terrain. The greatest rates of aggradation since the 1980s were in the Nisqually River near National 5.0 inches per year and the White River near Auburn 1.8 inches per year. Less pronounced aggradation was measured on the Puyallup River and the White River just downstream of Mud Mountain Dam. The largest measured rate of incision was measured in the Cowlitz River at Packwood 5.0 inches per year. Channel conveyance capacity estimated using a one dimensional hydraulic model decreased in some river reaches since 1984. The reach exhibiting the largest decrease about 20-50 percent in channel conveyance capacity was the White River between R Street Bridge and the Lake Tapps return a reach affected by recent flooding. Conveyance capacity also decreased in sections of the Puyallup River. Conveyance capacity was mostly unchanged along other study reaches. Bedload transport was simulated throughout the entire river network and consistent with other observations and analyses the hydraulic model showed that the upper Puyallup and White Rivers tended to accumulate sediment. Accuracy of the bedload transport modeling however was limited due to a scarcity of sediment transport data sets from the Puyallup system mantling of sand over cobbles in the lower Puyallup and White Rivers and overall uncertainty in modeling sediment transport in gravel bedded rivers. Consequently the output results from the model were treated as more qualitative in value useful in comparing geomorphic trends within different river reaches but not accurate in producing precise predictions of mass of sediment moved or deposited. The hydraulic model and the bedload transport component were useful for analyzing proposed river management options if surveyed cross sections adequately represented the river management site and proposed management options. The hydraulic model showed that setback levees would provide greater flood protection than gravel bar scalping after the initial project construction and for some time thereafter although the model was not accurate enough to quantify the length of time of the flood protection. The greatest hydraulic benefit from setback levees would be a substantial increase in the effective channel conveyance area. By widening the distance between levees the new floodplain would accommodate larger increases in discharge with relatively small incremental increases in stage. Model simulation results indicate that the hydraulic benefit from a setback levee also would be long lived and would effectively compensate for increased deposition within the setback reach from increased channel conveyance capacity. In contrast the benefit from gravel bar scalping would be limited by the volume of material that could be removed and the underlying hydraulics in the river section that would be mostly unaffected by scalping. Finally the study formulated an explanation of the flooding that affected Pacific Washington in January 2009. Reduction in channel conveyance capacity of about 25 percent at the White River near Auburn streamflow gaging station between November 2008 and January 2009 was caused by rapid accumulation of coarse grained sediment just downstream of the gage continuing an ongoing trend of aggradation that has been documented repeatedly.
