Singing The Dead Singing The Dead:

Singing to the Dead Victoria Armour-Hileman, 2002 Singing to the Dead recalls a Catholic lay missionary's work alongside the Mon Buddhist monks of Bangkok For more than two years Victoria Armour Hileman was a go between for the monks interceding with the world outside their temple walls for everything from a cornea transplant for a land mine victim to money to buy shoes for barefoot orphans Singing to the Dead details an aid worker's ongoing education how to weave through an embassy bureaucracy how to stave off burnout how to pull money out of thin air at the eleventh hour when to trust and when to be cautious when to kowtow when to pray

Singing for the Dead Paja Faudree, 2013-05-29 Singing for the Dead chronicles ethnic revival in Oaxaca Mexico where new forms of singing and writing in the local Mazatec indigenous language are producing powerful transformative political effects Paja Faudree argues for the inclusion of singing as a necessary component in the polarized debates about indigenous orality and literacy and she considers how the coupling of literacy and song has allowed people from the region to create texts of enduring social resonance She examines how local young people are learning to read and write in Mazatec as a result of the region's new Day of the Dead song contest Faudree also studies how tourist interest in local psychedelic mushrooms has led to their commodification producing both opportunities and challenges for songwriters and others who represent Mazatec culture She situates these revival movements within the contexts of Mexico and Latin America as well as the broad hemisphere wide movement to create indigenous literatures Singing for the Dead provides a new way to think about the politics of ethnicity the success of social movements and the limits of national belonging
