

Replacing Fuel Filters, Volvo Engines

General

The filters are an important part of the fuel system. Always replace the filters at the recommended intervals and use the recommended filter types for the best engine operation and service life.

A primary fuel filter is located on the outer, right or left frame rail in the engine compartment. This filter consists of a filter cartridge, a water separation bowl and may have a fuel heater built in.

W2001067

The secondary fuel filter is located on the left side, under the control unit on D12 and on the left, front side on the D7 engine. The filter is contained in a disposable cartridge.
