

Deal or No Deal is an Australian game show where the contestant aims to "knock out" the lowest values of cash by randomly picking briefcases numbered 1 to 26. Each numbered briefcase contains a cash value from 50c to $200,000, which is revealed when the contestant picks that particular case. Knocking high values off the board results in less cash being won. The cash values are grouped in colours, blue being the lowest, red the middle, and green being the highest values.
