Openai Sat Practice Review:

Reflections on Artificial Intelligence for Humanity Bertrand Braunschweig, Malik Ghallab, 2021-02-06 We already observe the positive effects of AI in almost every field and foresee its potential to help address our sustainable development goals and the urgent challenges for the preservation of the environment. We also perceive that the risks related to the safety, security, confidentiality and fairness of AI systems, the threats to free will of possibly manipulative systems as well as the impact of AI on the economy, employment, human rights, equality, diversity, inclusion and social cohesion need to be better assessed. The development and use of AI must be guided by principles of social cohesion, environmental sustainability, resource sharing and inclusion. It has to integrate human rights and social, cultural and ethical values of democracy. It requires continued education and training as well as continual assessment of its effects through social deliberation. The Reflections on AI for Humanity proposed in this book develop the following issues and sketch approaches for addressing them. How can we ensure the security requirements of critical applications and the safety and confidentiality of data communication and processing? What techniques and regulations for the validation, certification and audit of AI tools are needed to develop confidence in AI? How can we identify and overcome biases in algorithms? How do we design systems that respect essential human values, ensuring moral equality and inclusion? What kinds of governance mechanisms are needed for personal data, metadata and aggregated data at various levels? What are the effects of AI and automation on the transformation and social division of labor? What are the impacts on economic structures? What proactive and accommodation measures will be required? How will people benefit from decision support systems and personal digital assistants without the risk of manipulation? How do we design transparent and intelligible procedures and ensure that their functions reflect our values and criteria? How can we anticipate failure and restore human control over an AI system when it operates outside its intended scope? How can we devote a substantial part of our research and development resources to the major challenges of our time such as climate, environment, health and education?

Chatgpt and Other Generative AI Tools Jochen Kuhn, Stefan Küchemann, Knut Neumann, Martina Rau, 2025-02-17 In the past ten years, applications of generative artificial intelligence (GAI) have found rapidly growing use in medicine, science and daily life. Large language models (LLMs) have opened up new avenues, in particular for education. LLMs have been used to create interactive educational content for students, stimulate their curiosity, generate code explanations and develop assessment questions. Additionally, LLMs have been applied for language practice, anxiety alleviation and feedback provision. In higher education, LLMs have shown potential for assisting in medical exam preparation and clinical decision making. In school education, LLMs can help teachers with automated evaluation of student responses and respective adaptive feedback. More recently, LLM-based applications such as chatGPT have been used to generate teaching materials or assessment tasks across different subjects. The fields of understanding of the effects of the use of LLM-based applications in classroom teaching, however, is still in its infancy. GAI tools may help solving a range of tasks in education, in particular with respect to teachers and students and teachers efforts to generate content However it is critical that teachers and students do not overly rely on GAI generated solutions but instead critically assess each solution Students should furthermore not use GAI tools to avoid investing relevant mental effort to create mental models or more broadly build up competencies
