TIA Software User's Manual K. Elliott Cramer, 1995 Computer Models in Environmental Planning Steven I. Gordon, 2012-12-06 The purpose behind Computer Models in Environmental Planning is to provide a practical and applied guide to the use of these models in environmental planning and environmental impact analysis. Models concerning water quality, air quality, stormwater runoff, land capability evaluation, and information systems and hazardous waste disposal are reviewed and critiqued. I have tried to emphasize the practical problems with data, computer capabilities, and other analytical questions that must be faced by the practitioner attempting to use these models. Thus, I do not delve too deeply into the theoretical underpinnings of the models, referring the reader instead to specialized references in this area. For each environmental area, I review the major models and methods, comparing their assumptions, ease of use, and other characteristics. Practical examples illustrate the benefits and problems of using each model. Computer models are increasingly being used by planning and engineering professionals for locating and planning public works and industrial, commercial, and residential projects while evaluating their environmental impacts. The requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act and related state laws, as well as separate state and federal laws concerning air and water quality, stormwater runoff, land use, and hazardous waste disposal, have made the use of these methods mandatory in many circumstances. Yet, explanations of both the benefits and problems associated with supposedly easy to use computer versions of these models and methods remain at best difficult to retrieve and at worst incomplete. Parental Questionnaires as a Reliable Instrument for the Assessment of Child Language Development

Maria-José Ezeizabarrena, Melita Kovacevic, 2024-09-13 Language is crucial in child development. Therefore, general questions such as what are the possible challenges in language acquisition or such as how well the my child is doing are commonly present for researchers, clinicians, teachers, and parents. Parent-child interaction offers a privileged setting to observe children's behavior in multiple communicative situations which often is only available to the parents/caregivers. For this reason, within the broad range of methods used to assess children's development, parental questionnaires are widely used, being a non-invasive and inexpensive instrument to obtain information which is otherwise difficult to obtain. Data obtained with the many questionnaires covering various aspects of child development and communicative competence are equally relevant for basic research and everyday clinical practice. Development and use of parental questionnaires as well as data interpretation frequently require an interdisciplinary and cross-sector approach, bringing together developmental psychologists and practitioners. This interdisciplinarity is assumed but rarely addressed directly. A Manual for Notaries Public, General Conveyancers, Commissioners, Justices, Mayors, Consuls, Etc., as to Acknowledgements, Affidavits, Depositions, Oaths, Proofs, Protests, Etc., for Each State and Territory Florien Giauque, 1914 User's Manual for INSECT (version 1.0) R.
