

Using Tables, Charts, and Graphs

Overview

Students practice some basic graphing skills, using data they collected and data from a table.

Related Standards of Learning 3.1g

Objectives

The students should be able to:

- communicate results of investigations by displaying data in the form of tables, charts, and graphs;
- construct bar graphs, picture graphs, and line plots to display data.

Materials needed

- Aquarium filled with water
- A dime, a penny, a nickel, and a quarter
- Several stopwatches or a clock with visible second hand

Per student:

- Science journal
- Pencil
- "Bar and Picture Graph Scoring Sheet" handout (see p. 3)
- "Line Plot Scoring Sheet" handout (see p. 4)

Instructional activity

Content/Teacher Notes

Third-grade students should use graphs frequently in math and science classes. Many of the scientific investigations that students conduct throughout the year are good opportunities to incorporate graphing into the class activity.

Introduction

1. Ask students to predict which coin would fall faster through an aquarium filled with water: a dime, a penny, a nickel, or a quarter. Ask them how they might test their hypothesis, and take their responses. Then ask them how data for such an experiment might be recorded. Lead students to realize that data tables and graphs can be used to record and display such data.

Procedure

1. Before beginning the activity, have students construct a table in their journal similar to the one shown at right to record the data they will be collecting.
2. Designate one student to be the dropper of the coins for the class, and designate several students to be timers. These students should time how long it takes the coin to fall from just above the surface of the water to the bottom of the tank. Time should begin the moment the coin leaves the dropper's hand. The dropper should execute the same procedure for each drop to keep the experiment fair.
3. Have students conduct at least four trials for each coin and record the data in their table.

| Time for Coins to Fall through Water | | | | |

Lessons for a Scientific Literature Review Randell K. Schmidt, Maureen M. Smyth, Virginia K. Kowalski, 2008 Based on a collaborative inquiry based project co conducted and graded by science teachers and school librarians at Gill St Bernard's school this book presented in workshop format furnishes all the material necessary to enable school librarians and high school science teachers to collaboratively teach the important topic of how to perform and write up a scientific literature review. Students choose a topic of personal interest linked to their science class subjects. The school librarian and science teachers instruct students in how to perform the necessary research and how to successfully integrate the new information into a final product. This book will present an overview of the project including a discussion of the value of inquiry based research detailed project lessons student assignments and a concluding discussion of unit assessment Grades 9-14.

Resources in Education, 1995 ENC Focus, 1995 Handbook of Research on Cultivating Literacy in Diverse and Multilingual Classrooms Neokleous, Georgios, Krulatz, Anna, Farrelly, Raichle, 2020-03-27 Literacy has traditionally been associated with the linguistic and functional ability to read and write. Although literacy as a fundamental issue in education has received abundant attention in the last few decades most publications to date have focused on monolingual classrooms. Language teacher educators have a responsibility to prepare teachers to be culturally responsive and flexible so they can adapt to the range of settings and variety of learners they will encounter in their careers while also bravely questioning the assumptions they are encountering about multilingual literacy development and instruction. The Handbook of Research on Cultivating Literacy in Diverse and Multilingual Classrooms is an essential scholarly publication that explores the multifaceted nature of literacy development across the lifespan in a range of multilingual contexts. Recognizing that literacy instruction in contemporary language classrooms serving diverse student populations must go beyond developing reading and writing abilities this book sets out to explore a wide range of literacy dimensions. It offers unique perspectives through a critical reflection on issues related to power ownership identity and the social construction of literacy in multilingual societies. As a resource for use in language teacher preparation programs globally this book will provide a range of theoretical and practical perspectives while creating space for pre and in service teachers to grapple with the ideas in light of their respective contexts. The book will also provide valuable insights to instructional designers, curriculum developers, linguists, professionals, academicians, administrators, researchers and students. Teaching English and Maths in FE David Allan, 2017-05-22 This book is a guide for all teachers in the FE and Skills Sector regardless of their discipline. It explores how FE teachers can address the mathematics and English needs of all learners to redress the skills gap that is a current focus. The text explores what works in the sector examining the barriers to learning and how all learners can be included. It takes a focused look at what works for the vocational learners who have not succeeded in a school setting and helps tackle the problem of low motivation in learners. The text goes beyond simply providing strategies to follow and
