

Talking to a child about death

Use simple language

Avoid using complex medical terms or euphemisms that may confuse the child.

Reassure

Reassure the child they are safe. Children may worry that they or a loved one will die too. Validate their worry and let them know how you are taking care of them and yourself.

Create a Memorial

Helping a child make a memorial provides a space for grieving and remembering their person.

Be Honest

Children can sense when something is wrong. Explain that the person has died and won't be coming back.

Embrace Emotions

Children may react in different ways to the death including sadness, anger, or confusion. Allow them to express their emotions and offer support.

Allow Questions

Children may have a lot of questions about death. Some may feel awkward and difficult to answer. It's okay to tell a child you don't know.

Seek Support

If you or your child is struggling with the loss seek support from a therapist or a support group.

Talking With Children About Loss:

Talking with Children About Loss Maria Trozzi, 1999-10-01 Through captivating stories and thoughtful analysis Maria Trozzi explains how to handle the difficult job of talking with children and adolescents about loss with discussions about How children perceive and interpret events such as death disability and divorce Guiding children through the four tasks of mourning Helping children face funerals wakes and memorial services Children s fears and fantasies how they express them and how to address them Age appropriate responses to children s questions and concerns Talking to children about long term illness suicide family or community tragedy and other special situations What to do when children won t talk about loss and when to seek professional help The wisdom authenticity and sheer presence of the author are evident from page one until the end of the beautifully written book Terms like ground breaking and innovative have been trivialized by overuse In this case they are deserved Stan Turecki M D author of The Difficult Child What Do We Tell the Children? Joseph M. Primo, 2013-09-17 One out of seven children will lose a parent before they are 20 The statistics are sobering but they are also a call for preparedness However pastors and counselors of all types are often at a loss when dealing with a grieving child Talking to adults about death and grief is difficult it s all the more challenging to talk to children and teens The stakes are high grieving children are high risk for substance abuse promiscuity depression isolation and suicide Yet despite this most of these kids grow up to be normal or exceptional adults But their chance to become healthy adults increases with the support of a loving community Supporting grieving children requires intentionality open communication and patience Rather than avoid all conversations on death or pretend like it never happened normalizing grief and offering support requires us to be in tune with kids through dialogue as they grapple with questions of how and why When listening to children in grief we often have to embrace the mystery offer love and compassion and stick with the basics The author says We don t have to answer the why and how for them but we can assure our children that God is with us as we suffer We can do so by doing good for others and pointing out all of those moments when someone has done something good for us I believe that most of the time that s as far as we will get and that is okay Children Also Grieve Linda Goldman, 2006-01-16 Children Also Grieve is an imaginative resource fully illustrated with color photographs that offers support and reassurance to children coming to terms with the loss of a close friend or relative and to adults who are supporting them through their bereavement The first part of the book is designed to be read and worked through by children The story tells of the experiences of Henry the dog of a family whose grandfather has died During Henry s progress through the different stages of bereavement he learns strategies for coping with his grief At various stages of the story Goldman provides readers with the opportunity to share their own reactions to loss through words and pictures using specific prompt questions that encourage the exploration of different facets of grief The second part includes a list of useful vocabulary to help children express their feelings about bereavement a bibliography of other useful resources for both children and adults and a section that will help adults to understand and aid children throughout the grief process This last section also explains the approach taken in the story details typical responses to bereavement and discusses useful ways in which adults can discuss and share grief with children This book is an invaluable tool for bereaved children and those who care for them     Talking About Death and Bereavement in School Ann Chadwick,2011-10-15 This short easy to read book offers simple but important advice and guidance for school teachers and staff on what to do when a child is grieving It includes advice on explaining death to children insights into how children may be feeling and how they may react and ways in which they can be supported     When Your Child Loses a Loved One Theresa Huntley,2001-07-01 Talking with a grieving child can put a parent at a loss for words In this brief guide Huntley guides parents through children s grief including how children understand death how to talk with children about death how children grieve what steps help children work through their grief and how parents can recognize the ebb and flow of grief over the course of children s lives     Children and Grief Joey O'Connor,2004-11 A sensitive compassionate book that helps parents teach their children the truth about death and dying     Giving Hope Elena Lister, M.D.,Michael Schwartzman, Ph.D.,2022-08-30 The best and only resource you will ever need for helping any child understand and cope with illness death and loss Just as death is inevitable talking about death is an inevitable part of parenting Dr Elena Lister and Dr Michael Schwartzman offer us the way to have conversations with children that are as much about life as they are about death conversations that anyone who parents teaches or counsels children can have Giving Hope is a must have resource that expands our understanding of how to prepare for initiate and facilitate these personal and profound conversations The approach is honest practical and compassionate and will benefit a grieving child both now and in the future Giving Hope provides us with the tools to make our children s experiences positive and life affirming     Finding the Words Alan D. Wolfelt,2013 It s hard to talk to children and teens about death and dying particularly when someone they love has died or might die soon Our instinct as caring adults may be to shelter them from painful truths Yet as Dr Wolfelt emphasizes what kids need most is our honesty and our loving presence This practical and compassionate handbook includes dozens of suggested phrases to use with preschoolers school agers and teenagers as you explain death in general or the death of a parent a sibling a grandparent or a pet Other chapters include possible words and ideas to draw on when you are talking to kids about a death by suicide homicide or terminal illness At times grown ups must also have very difficult conversations with dying children this book offers guidance A final chapter discusses how to talk with kids about funerals burial and cremation Book jacket     Talking with Children and Young People about Death and Dying Mary Turner,2006-09-28 This photocopiable workbook is a popular resource designed to help adults talk to bereaved children in which Mary Turner offers useful insights into the concerns of children experiencing grief It will equip adults to encourage bereaved children to communicate their pain and understand the emotions aroused by the death of someone close to them     Talking with Children about Loss Laura Lowrie Corwin,2005     Life and Loss Linda Goldman,2013-11-20 Many clinicians recognize that denying or ignoring grief issues in children leaves them feeling alone and that acknowledging loss is crucial part of a child's healthy development. Really dealing with loss in productive ways however is sometimes easier said than done. For decades Life and Loss has been the book clinicians have relied on for a full and nuanced presentation of the many issues with which grieving children grapple as well as an honest exploration of the interrelationship between unresolved grief, educational success and responsible citizenry. The third edition of Life and Loss brings this exploration firmly into the twenty first century and makes a convincing case that children's grief is no longer restricted only to loss identified children. Children's grief is now endemic, it is global. Life and Loss is not just the book clinicians need to understand grief in the twenty first century, it's the book they need to work with it in constructive ways.

Talking to Kids about Death and Dying Mary Fleck, 2016-06. Death is universal and it is inevitable. We are exposed to death through various media on a daily basis. Yet death is a subject most people avoid. We hide behind euphemisms, change the subject quickly or ignore the topic altogether. We don't know what to say or how to act around those who have experienced the death of a person who was significant in their life. We are a culture that lacks the capacity to have competent conversations about death, loss and grief and as a result we are unsure of how to provide support to those who are grieving, especially children. This book comprises three sections. The first section poses often asked questions and offers guidance for those seeking to understand how to engage with a grieving child. The second section details activities designed to encourage a grieving child to think their thoughts, feel their feelings, share their memories and develop their coping skills. The final section provides a discussion guide for What Do We Tell the Children Talking to Kids About Death and Dying and is intended for parents, educators and other professionals who wish to think more deeply about this topic.

Children and Grief Joey O'Connor, 1997-04-14. What people are saying about Children and Grief. A great resource for teaching kids the truth about death and dying. Steve Arterburn, New Life Ministries. A must have book for anyone explaining the reality of death to children. Dave Dravecky, Perseverance. Joey O'Connor writes passionately and purposefully to guide parents and guardians as they help their children deal with life's most painful events. Russell Friedman, The Grief Recovery Outreach. This is a book written for you and your children, explains author and Grief Recovery specialist Joey O'Connor. It initiates a conversation on a difficult subject most people prefer to avoid. It is about people like you and me struggling to figure out what they really believe when the unbelievable has happened. And then wondering, What in the world am I going to say to my kids? How am I going to explain what just happened in our family and what I believe about the God who saw this whole thing happen. Raised in a Southern Californian family who has been in the funeral business for over 125 years, Joey brings a compassionate and intimate knowledge of the complex issues surrounding grief and loss. In Children and Grief, Joey teaches you how to understand the unique differences in talking about death, grief and faith, explain the physical reality of death and terminal illness, answer your children's questions in specific age appropriate ways, avoid speaking in confusing religious euphemisms like "God needed another angel" help your child grieve by supporting his or her unique personality helping children deal with fear anger sadness guilt and confusion address difficult topics like war school shootings terrorism and suicide provide a sense of security amid disorienting events such as funerals assist grieving teenagers and understand adolescent warning signs create meaningful grief memories and rituals to remember loved ones how to begin a life long conversation ranging from small children to teenagers Children and Grief offers parents a way to approach tough questions with honesty tenderness and hope O Connor shows how to teach children to trust God celebrate life and have hope in the face of death

Children's Grief Pam Heaney,Piers Heaney,2014-10-03 Loss grief and death explained for children A companion volume to Coming to Grief this book is a guide to help adults talk to children about loss grief and death The author provides practical helpful information and offers guidelines and strategies when dealing with sensitive situations in relation to children Children experience grief and loss for many reasons loss of a loved one a separation or divorce change of schools or the death of a pet The author Pam Heaney recognizes the difficulties adults face when talking to children about death one of our biggest hurdles is not in educating children about loss but rather in equipping ourselves to do so In this frequently consulted and much praised book she she concludes that we need to understand the distress children face when grieving and offer much needed support

Children Mourning, Mourning Children Kenneth J. Doka,2014-01-21 Based on the Hospice Foundation of America s second annual teleconference this book explores three basic themes in children s grief Firstly it maintains that children are always developing therefore their understanding of death and their reactions to illness and loss are also multifaceted and constantly undergoing change Secondly children grieve in ways that are both different from and similar to adults While they may need different therapeutic approaches from their elders each loss is different and the grief experience will be affected by many of the same factors that affect adults Thirdly it holds that they need significant support as they grieve Talking to children about loss and and illness is too important to wait until a crisis rather it is essential to provide opportunities to discuss loss in times that are not so Emotionally Laden This Book Aims To Demonstrate That Open Communication between parents and children will lead to skills and understanding that are essential to the child for coping with loss and reaffirming that death is part of the process of living
