

Understanding Prostate Cancer

What is the prostate?

The prostate is a small, walnut-shaped gland in men that produces and stores semen. It is located in the male reproductive system, just below the bladder and in front of the rectum. The prostate gland is responsible for producing and storing semen, which is then released during ejaculation.

How is prostate cancer spread?

Prostate cancer can spread from the prostate gland to other parts of the body, such as the lymph nodes, bones, and other organs. This is called metastasis. The most common way for prostate cancer to spread is through the lymphatic system, which carries fluids and nutrients throughout the body.

How is prostate cancer diagnosed?

Prostate cancer is typically diagnosed through a combination of tests, including a digital rectal exam (DRE), a prostate-specific antigen (PSA) blood test, and a biopsy. The DRE involves a doctor feeling the prostate gland through the rectum to check for any abnormalities.

Prostate-specific antigen (PSA) test
The PSA test is a blood test that measures the level of prostate-specific antigen (PSA) in the blood. PSA is a protein produced by the prostate gland, and elevated levels can indicate the presence of prostate cancer. However, PSA levels can also be elevated in other conditions, such as benign prostatic hyperplasia (BPH) or prostatitis.

Prostate cancer is classified by stage and grade.

Prostate cancer is classified by stage and grade. The stage of the cancer indicates how far it has spread from the prostate gland. The grade of the cancer indicates how abnormal the cancer cells look under a microscope. The most common staging system for prostate cancer is the TNM staging system, which stands for Tumor, Node, and Metastasis.

Stages of prostate cancer

Prostate cancer is classified into four main stages: Stage I, Stage II, Stage III, and Stage IV. Stage I prostate cancer is the earliest stage, where the cancer is confined to the prostate gland. Stage II prostate cancer is more advanced, where the cancer has spread slightly beyond the prostate gland. Stage III prostate cancer is even more advanced, where the cancer has spread to the lymph nodes. Stage IV prostate cancer is the most advanced stage, where the cancer has spread to other parts of the body, such as the bones.

Grading of prostate cancer

Prostate cancer is also classified by grade, which indicates how abnormal the cancer cells look under a microscope. The most common grading system for prostate cancer is the Gleason score, which ranges from 6 to 10. A Gleason score of 6 indicates a low-grade cancer, while a Gleason score of 10 indicates a high-grade cancer. The Gleason score is determined by adding the scores for the two most common types of cancer cells found in the prostate gland.
