Suspended Apocalypse White Supremacy Genocide And The Filipino Condition:

Suspended Apocalypse Dylan Rodriguez, 2010 Suspended Apocalypse is a rich and provocative meditation on the emergence of the Filipino American as a subject of history. Culling from historical popular and ethnographic archives, Dylan Rodriguez provides a sophisticated analysis of the Filipino presence in the American imaginary. Radically critiquing current conceptions of Filipino American identity, community, and history, he puts forth a genealogy of Filipino genocide rooted in the early twentieth-century military, political, and cultural subjugation of the Philippines by the United States. Suspended Apocalypse critically addresses what Rodriguez calls Filipino American communion, interrogating redemptive and romantic notions of Filipino migration and settlement in the United States in relation to larger histories of race, colonial conquest, and white supremacy. Contemporary popular and scholarly discussions of the Filipino American, he asserts, are inseparable from their origins in the violent racist regimes of the United States and its historical successor, liberal multiculturalism. Rodriguez deftly contrasts the colonization of the Philippines with present-day disasters such as Hurricane Katrina and Mount Pinatubo to show how the global subjection of Philippine black and indigenous peoples creates a linked history of genocide. But in these juxtapositions, Rodriguez finds moments and spaces of radical opportunity. Engaging the violence and disruption of the Filipino condition sets the stage, he argues, for the possibility of a transformation of the political lens through which contemporary empire might be analyzed, understood, and perhaps even overcome.

State of White Supremacy Moon-Kie Jung, João Costa Vargas, Eduardo Bonilla-Silva, 2011-03-07 State of White Supremacy investigates how race functions as an enduring logic of governance in the United States, perpetually generating and legitimating racial hierarchy and privilege.

The Strange Career of Racial Liberalism Joseph Darda, 2022-03-15 How Americans learned to wait on time for racial change. What if Joseph Darda asks our desire to solve racism with science, civil rights, antiracist literature, integration, and color blindness has entrenched it further? In The Strange Career of Racial Liberalism, he traces the rise of liberal antiracism, showing how reformers' faith in time in the moral arc of the universe has undercut future movements with the insistence that racism constitutes a time-limited crisis to be solved with time-limited remedies. Most historians attribute the shortcomings of the civil rights era to a conservative backlash or to the fracturing of the liberal establishment in the late 1960s, but the civil rights movement also faced resistance from a liberal frontlash from antiredistributive allies who, before it ever took off, constrained what the movement could demand and how it could demand it. Telling the stories of Ruth Benedict, Kenneth Clark, W. E. B. Du Bois, John Howard Griffin, Pauli Murray, Lillian Smith, Richard Wright, and others, Darda reveals how Americans learned to wait on time for racial change and the enduring harm of that trust in the clock.

Migration in Performance Caleb Johnston, Geraldine Pratt, 2019-02-08 This book follows the travels of Nanay, a testimonial theatre play developed from research with migrant domestic workers in Canada, as it was recreated and restaged in different places around the globe. This work examines how Canadian migration policy is embedded across and within histories of colonialism in the Philippines and settler colonialism in Canada Translations between scholarship and performance and between Canada and the Philippines became more uneasy as the play travelled internationally raising pressing questions of how decolonial collaborations might take shape in practice This book examines the strengths and limits of existing framings of Filipina migration and offers rich ideas of how care the care of children and elderly and each other might be rethought in radically new ways within less violently unequal relations that span different colonial histories and complex triangulations of racialised migrants settlers and Indigenous peoples This book is a journey towards a new way of doing and performing research and theory It is part of a growing interdisciplinary exchange between the performing arts and social sciences and will appeal to researchers and students within human geography and performance studies and those working on migration colonialisms documentary theatre and social reproduction
