urban dwellers on a daily basis They are also valuable as social spaces to bring residents together foster social ties and strengthen communities Despite their importance surprisingly little has been written to guide the planning and design of neighbourhood landscapes This book is written for a specific purpose to illustrate how the design of neighbourhood landscapes helps to deliver more benefits for urban dwellers and at the same time protect ecosystems that facilitate human well being This is in turn important as the synergistic relationships between human well being quality of biophysical urban environment and health of human environment interactions fundamentally underpin urban sustainability The authors emphasize the role neighbourhood landscapes play in forging connections between people and nature people and people and people and place Most of all the book highlights the role of focusing on people in this endeavour as it is only when landscapes are appropriately designed and when people recognize these benefits that they become valued and protected as a community resource This book is organized into two parts Part 1 focuses on the conceptual foundations that underpin the neighbourhood landscape design guidelines being developed In this section the authors describe the key concepts relating functions of neighbourhood landscapes to the key urban development goals of sustainability liveability and reliance how they can be represented in a framework and how a synthesis of current knowledge of cities as socio ecological systems helps to identify principles that can guide the designing of neighbourhood landscapes Part 2 is more application focused and is centred on neighbourhood landscape design guidelines inspired by the concept of ecosystem services The guidelines consist of design approaches practical strategies design targets and performance monitoring indicators for tracking the performance of neighbourhood landscapes The book is written for readers in academia and design practice and anyone who has a role in shaping neighbourhood landscapes for the benefit of urban dwellers      Landscape Architecture Ian Thompson, 2014-05

Landscape Planning with Ecosystem Services Christina von Haaren, Andrew A. Lovett, Christian Albert, 2019-06-25 Human well being depends in many ways on maintaining the stock of natural resources which deliver the services from which human s benefit However these resources and flows of services are increasingly threatened by unsustainable and competing land uses Particular threats exist to those public goods whose values are not well represented in markets or whose deterioration will only affect future generations As market forces alone are not sufficient effective means for local and regional planning are needed in order to safeguard scarce natural resources coordinate land uses and create sustainable landscape structures This book argues that a solution to such challenges in Europe can be found by merging the landscape planning tradition with ecosystem services concepts Landscape planning has strengths in recognition of public benefits and implementation mechanisms while the ecosystem services approach makes the connection between the status of natural assets and human well being more explicit It can also provide an economic perspective focused on individual preferences and benefits which helps validate the acceptability of environmental planning goals Thus linking landscape planning and ecosystem services provides a two way benefit creating a usable science to meet the needs of local and regional decision making The book is structured around the Driving forces Pressures States Impacts Responses framework providing an introduction to relevant concepts methodologies and techniques It presents a new ecosystem services informed approach to landscape planning that constitutes both a framework and toolbox for students and practitioners to address the environmental and landscape challenges of 21st century Europe

Planning at the Landscape Scale Paul H. Selman, 2006 Traditionally landscape planning has involved the designation and protection of exceptional countryside However whilst this still remains important there is a growing recognition of the multi functionality of rural areas and the need to encourage sustainable use of the whole countryside rather than just its hotspots With an interdisciplinary assessment of the rural environment this book draws on theories of landscape values people place relationships sustainable development and plan implementation It focuses on the competing influences of globalization and localization seeing the role of planning as the reconciliation of these conflicting demands reinforcing character and distinctiveness without museum izing rural areas Taking a landscape scale approach to the topic this book responds to the interest sparked by concern for rural landscapes and by recent local and national policy shifts in this area Sustainable Landscape
