Louisa Learns to Write Kate Hannigan, 2026-01-20 Through persistence and hard work Louisa May Alcott goes from a little girl writing in her Imagination Book to the world renowned author of Little Women This nonfiction picture book will inspire creativity and spark interest in writing for kids ages 7-10 Louisa May Alcott wrote the beloved classic Little Women but she started out as just a little girl scribbling in her journal Born into the middle of a spirited creative group of sisters Louisa was always up for exploration play dreaming and creating the traits that would one day make her a writer Even when times were hard Louisa's family held each other close and persevered So when Louisa dared to write a novel she wrote about the thing that mattered most to her family The four Alcott sisters became the four March sisters in the smashing hit novel Little Women Award winning writer Kate Hannigan and illustrator Sofia Moore bring Louisa to life and she is just as spunky and charming as you'd hope Jo March's creator would be

Twain, Alcott, and the Birth of the Adolescent Reform Novel Roberta S. Trites, 2009-11 Trites argues that Twain and Alcott wrote on similar topics because they were so deeply affected by the Civil War by cataclysmic emotional and financial losses in their families by their cultural immersion in the tenets of Protestant philosophy and by sexual tensions that may have stimulated their interest in writing for adolescents Trites demonstrates how the authors participated in a cultural dynamic that marked the changing nature of adolescence in America provoking a literary sentiment that continues to inform young adult literature Both intuited that the transitory nature of adolescence makes it ripe for expression about human potential for change and reform

Visions of Glory Kathleen Diffley, Benjamin Fagan, 2019-11-01 Visions of Glory brings together twenty-two images and twenty-two brisk essays each essay connecting an image to the events that unfolded during a particular year of the Civil War The book focuses on a diverse set of images that include a depiction of former slaves whipping their erstwhile overseer distributed by an African American publisher a census graph published in the New York Times and a cutout of a child's hand sent by a southern mother to her husband at the front The essays in this collection reveal how wartime women and men created both written accounts and a visual register to make sense of this pivotal period The collection proceeds chronologically providing a nuanced history by highlighting the multiple meanings an assorted group of writers and readers discerned from the same set of circumstances In so doing this volume assembles contingent and fractured visions of the Civil War but its differing perspectives also reveal a set of overlapping concerns A number of essays focus in particular on African American engagements with visual culture The collection also emphasizes the role that women played in making disseminating or interpreting wartime images While every essay explores the relationship between image and word several contributions focus on the ways in which Civil War images complicate an understanding of canonical writers such as Emerson Melville and Whitman

Prospects for the Study of American Literature (II) Richard Kopley, Barbara Cantalupo, 2009 What can there possibly be left to say about This common litany resonant both in and outside of academia reflects a growing sense that the number of subjects and authors appropriate for literary study is rapidly becoming exhausted Take heart admonishes Richard Kopley in this dynamic new anthology for this is decidedly not the case While generations of literary study have unquestionably covered much ground in analyzing canonical writers many aspects of even the most well known authors both their lives and their work remain underexamined Among the authors discussed are T S Eliot Ralph Waldo Emerson William Faulkner Harriet Beecher Stowe Walt Whitman Ernest Hemingway Richard Wright Edith Wharton Nathaniel Hawthorne Zora Neale Hurston Henry James Willa Cather Herman Melville Edgar
