Surviving College With Bipolar Disorder:

Surviving College with Bipolar Disorder Christina Marie, 2015-03-10 Christina Marie received her BS in Medical Technology in May 2014. She is a board certified Medical Technologist currently working in a hospital laboratory. During her freshman year of college in 2009, she experienced her first manic episode and since has had three more. In between, she has suffered through long dark depressions. Each year since her first episode, she has learned more about keeping her moods stable. In her book Surviving College with Bipolar Disorder, she hopes to share what she has learned. Not only will her book be educational, it will also submerge the reader into her life, helping the reader to understand what she has been through. Christina hopes that Surviving College with Bipolar Disorder can shed some light on the extreme difficulties presented by the disorder, as well as expose how the medical community can improve their treatment.

Surviving the Silence Charlotte Pierce-Baker, 2015-02-23 In this intelligent, stunning, and honest book, Charlotte Pierce Baker weaves together the accounts of black women who have been raped and who have felt that they had to remain silent in order to protect themselves and their race. It opens with the author's harrowing and courageous account of her rape and includes the stories of the author's own family's response, plus the voices of black men who have supported rape survivors.

Strategic Interventions in Mental Health Rhetoric Lisa Melonçon, Cathryn Molloy, 2022-02-06 Offering rhetorically informed strategic interventions, this innovative collection moves beyond critiques of mental health issues, problems, and care. With sections that focus on methodological, cultural, and legal and pedagogical interventions, readers will find an engaging discussion of a discrete mental health phenomenon, as well as a clear interventional takeaway in each chapter. Contributors make use of critical discourse analyses, ethnographic inquiries, autoethnographic inquiries, case studies, and textual analyses to engage such mental health research topics as postpartum depression among Chinese mothers, insanity pleas, anosognosia, issues of intimacy, access, and embodiment in research projects, community support groups, Black mental health, women in Alcoholics Anonymous, and mental health in faculty workshops and university online health tools. The authors and editors create scholarship on mental health that explicitly builds productive methodological, theoretical, and practical bridges among scholars and teachers in the various specialties of writing and communication. This collection will interest scholars, students, and practitioners in health and medical humanities, rhetoric of health and medicine, health communication, medical anthropology, scientific and technical communication, disability studies, and rhetorical studies generally.
