

Chapter 12: Chapter Summary

LO 1. Journalize transactions for long-term notes payable and mortgages payable

Long-term notes payable and mortgages payable are reported in the long-term liabilities section of the balance sheet unless there is a portion due within one year. That portion is shown in the current liabilities section of the balance sheet. An amortization schedule should be prepared that details each loan payment's allocation between principal and interest and also the beginning and ending balances of the loan. Mortgages payable are long-term debts that are backed with a security interest in specific property.

LO 2. Describe bonds payable

Bonds payable represent long-term debt issued to multiple lenders called bondholders, usually in increments of $1,000 per bond. The bond requires a face value payment at maturity and interest payments based on a stated interest rate over the life of the bond. A bond can be issued at face value, at a discount, or at a premium. A bond is issued at face value when the stated interest rate is equal to the market interest rate. A bond is issued at less than face value when the stated interest rate is less than the market interest rate. A bond is issued at more than face value when the stated interest rate is more than the market interest rate.

LO 3. Journalize transactions for bonds payable and interest expense using the straight-line amortization method

The basic journal entry to record the issuance of bonds payable debits Cash and credits Bonds Payable. If a bond is issued at a discount, Discount on Bonds Payable will be debited for the difference between the face value and cash received. If a bond is issued at a premium, Premium on Bonds Payable will be credited for the difference between the cash received and face value. Interest payments must be recorded with a debit to Interest Expense and a credit to Cash. Discount on Bonds Payable and Premium on Bonds Payable must be amortized over the life of the bond. The straight-line amortization method allocates an equal amount of the bond discount or premium to each interest period.

LO 4. Journalize transactions to retire bonds payable

When bonds are retired at maturity, the entry involves a debit to Bonds Payable and a credit to Cash for the face value of the bond. Retirement of bonds before maturity involves writing off the remaining portion of the discount or premium account and crediting a gain or debiting a loss on retirement.

LO 5. Report liabilities on the balance sheet

Heller, F. J. Mönks, R. Subotnik, Robert J. Sternberg, 2000-12-18 The first edition of this popular reference work was published in 1993 and received critical acclaim for its achievement in bringing together international perspectives on research and development in giftedness and talent. Scholars welcomed it as the first comprehensive volume in the field and it has proved to be an indispensable resource to researchers. Since the first edition the scholarly field of giftedness and talent studies has expanded and developed, welcoming contributions from researchers in related disciplines. Several theoretical frameworks outlined in the first edition have now been empirically tested and a number of new trends have emerged. The Second Edition of the International Handbook of Giftedness and Talent provides an invaluable research tool to academics, researchers, and students interested in the field of giftedness and talent. The contributors are renowned in the field and the broad range of topics on giftedness that have been studied in the past century, right up to the late 1990s, are represented in this volume. It is truly international in scope, bringing together leading scholars and teachers from all around the world. This new edition has been fully updated and rewritten and includes 22 completely new chapters. It provides a comprehensive review and critical synthesis of significant theory, a unique cross-national perspective with contributions from over 100 distinguished authors covering 24 nations, significant contributions from scholars working in related fields, an increased focus on empirically supported scholarship, and is arranged for quick and easy reference with comprehensive subject and author indexes. The World of the Early Sienese Painter, This second volume of a trilogy provides the first comprehensive account of the economic, social, religious, and intellectual world of 13th and 14th century Sienese painters.
