County Officials Get Variances Approval

Three county officials met with the Texas Jail Standards Commission Friday in Austin to receive approval for seven permanent variances in the structure of the county jail. The variances are estimated $25,000, according to Sheriff Travis Shuler.

The sheriff said the members of the commission were most complimentary of the county's efforts in working with them to satisfy state requirements and for the fact that the County Judge Richard Ray and District Attorney Richard Davis appeared before the group. The sheriff said that the commission members said that Van Zandt is the only county that has sent more than one official to meet with them. They said also that if all counties would work with them as Van Zandt has done, there would be much less difficulty in meeting the standards set by the state.

Work on remodeling the jail has been completed and the county has spent in the neighborhood of $4,500 up to now. He said he expects a total bill to run around $15,000.
