

Chapter 2

2.1 Eleanor's standardized score, $z = \frac{588 - 568}{100} = 1.8$, is higher than Gerald's standardized score,

$$z = \frac{27 - 18}{6} = 1.5.$$

2.2 The standardized batting averages (z -scores) for these three outstanding hitters are:

Player	z -score
Cobb	$z = \frac{430 - 365}{8071} = 4.15$
Williams	$z = \frac{406 - 387}{8516} = 4.36$
Brent	$z = \frac{380 - 361}{9337} = 4.07$

All three hitters were at least 4 standard deviations above their peers, but Williams' z -score is the highest.

2.3 (a) Judy's bone density score is about one and a half standard deviations below the average score for all women her age. The fact that your standardized score is negative indicates that your bone density is below the average for your peer group. The magnitude of the standardized score tells us how many standard deviations you are below the average (about 1.5). (b) If we let σ denote the standard deviation of the bone density in Judy's reference population, then we can solve for σ in the equation $-1.45 = \frac{948 - 938}{\sigma}$. Thus, $\sigma = 5.52$.

2.4 (a) Mary's z -score (0.5) indicates that her bone density score is about half a standard deviation above the average score for all women her age. Even though the two bone density scores are exactly the same, Mary is 10 years older so her z -score is higher than Judy's (-1.45). Judy's bones are healthier when comparisons are made to other women in their age groups. (b) If we let σ denote the standard deviation of the bone density in Mary's reference population, then we can solve for σ in the equation $0.5 = \frac{948 - 944}{\sigma}$. Thus, $\sigma = 8$. There is more variability in the bone densities for older women, which is not surprising.

2.5 (a) A histogram is shown below. The distribution of unemployment rates is symmetric with a center around 9%, rates varying from 2.7% to 7.1%, and no gaps or outliers.
