

Role of Gym Calls for Consideration

by Kay Webb

The new gym is finally here, and with it are beginnings of the additions it will make to Southwestern's programs and facilities.

There can be no doubt that the new building and its equipment will be put to good use, now that they have been secured. The Richardson Foundation's $1 million gift was a generous one, but even so, the cost to Southwestern was substantial. There are people who feel that the money would have been better spent had it been used for the upgrading of other areas of University concern, such as the hiring of new faculty members and the enlargement and improvement of academic programs. (See "Crunkle Grumpy Meets Eli Cid", elsewhere in this issue — ed.)

President Fleming referred Sunday to the Sid W. Richardson Physical Education Center as the key to meeting the academic and activities sides of physical education at Southwestern, and here lies the basic question which will determine whether the new facility is worth the time and effort it required; will it indeed be used to develop and strengthen training in physical education, or will it become merely a toy to show off to other schools — a display piece to take part in a "we're better than you are" race for prestige?

One may only hope that the latter will not prove to be the case. When buildings and programs at one institution are used as pawns to fortify a place — a ranking, if you will — in relation to other institutions, they lose their true value. When only the material worth and the comparative physical greatness are considered in evaluating an entity, that entity becomes simply a lifeless shell. Mere book value of a physical plant enhances reputation, not education, when that book value is the only criterion of worth.

Certainly the new gymnasium has too much potential for constructive and educational use to be robbed of its meaning by being used as a showpiece. It can be used to promote and improve physical education and athletics, and it can be a worthy addition to Southwestern's programs. But its newness and grandeur should not blind us to the fact that there is still an urgent need for development in other areas. The Richardson Physical Education Center is truly a fine facility, but a new gymnasium does not a good University make.
