The Prairies Lost and Found Leonard B. Kuffert, 2007 We lose and find all the time We can forget apprehend or comprehend our surroundings several times each day Both losing and finding forgetting and rediscovering the natural and human traces on the prairies might seem like an impossibility Have we not recorded our impressions and images of prairie life faithfully Are we not standing on the shoulders of prairie giants One kind of prairie grain elevators have been disappearing from the North American prairies for about a generation and yet they have become I would argue even more vividly than in the days before they started to disappear an iconic symbol of a place which is less and less like its imagined past Our memories both individual and collective adjust to such absences by canonizing vanishing saints before it really is too late We lose the thing and find we like to think its essence We remember artistic renderings of prairie people landscapes and stories reading Margaret Laurence's novels or W L Morton's history but we cannot reproduce the pictures and words at will We know the contours of their labours just the same We forget or at least under advertise the fast that the Prairie however it might be divided by provincial or international borders is also an urban place We think less often of the fact that we have a transnational prairies in which an awareness of divergent national pasts and presents is necessary To acknowledge these
