

A close-up photograph of a man and a woman lying in bed. The woman, with long brown hair, is on the left, her head resting on the man's shoulder. She is wearing a dark, low-cut top. The man, with dark hair, is on the right, his head resting on the woman's shoulder. He is wearing a light-colored, possibly white, shirt. They are both smiling slightly. The background is a plain, light color.

Regulating Romance Shanti Parikh, 2016-04-11 Drawing on ten years of ethnographic research two hundred fifty interviews and over three hundred youth love letters author Shanti Parikh uses lively vignettes to provide a rare window into young people's heterosexual desires and practices in Uganda In chapters entitled Unbreak my heart I miss you like a desert missing rain and You're just playing with my head she invites readers into the world of secret longings disappointments and anxieties of young Ugandans as they grapple with everyday difficulties while creatively imagining romantic futures and possibilities Parikh also examines the unintended consequences of Uganda's aggressive HIV campaigns that thrust sexuality and anxieties about it into the public sphere In a context of economic precarity and generational tension that constantly complicates young people's notions of consumption based romance communities experience the dilemmas of protecting and policing young people from reputational and health dangers of sexual activity

They arrested me for loving a school girl is the title of a chapter on controlling delinquent daughters and punishing defiant boyfriends for attempting to undermine patriarchal authority by asserting their adolescent romantic agency Sex education programs struggle between risk and pleasure amidst morally charged debates among international donors and community elders transforming the youthful female body into a platform for public critique and concern The many sides of this research constitute an eloquently executed critical anthropology of intervention
