Mines Away!:

The Significance of US Army Air Forces Minelaying in World War II John S. Chilstrom, In World War II's Pacific Theater the U S Army Air Forces AAF devoted a small percentage of its long range capability to aerial minelaying against Japanese warships and commerce Sea mines explosive underwater devices that damaged sank or deterred ships were weapons that had difficulty gaining the same acceptance as guns bombs and torpedoes Yet with time a small number of aerial mining advocates influenced wartime commanders to ensure the growth of minelaying doctrine equipment development and combat experience Ultimately aerial minelaying became one of the most successful AAF maritime missions of the war and signaled an important role in sea control for the future U S Air Force Minelaying by the AAF had to overcome the absence of doctrine serious questions of service autonomy and preconceptions about naval and air force traditional roles Though this initially unappreciated weapon gained considerable acceptance during the years of World War II mines were not again dropped from aircraft in combat until the Vietnam War During the Cold War the U S Air Force gave little effort to its collateral maritime missions until concern grew over containing an expanding Soviet naval threat Today Air Force capabilities for aerial minelaying and other naval missions remain an important though little appreciated means for projecting long range air power in support of Global Reach Global Power
