Rethinking Library Linking Cindi Trainor,Jason Price,Jason S. Price,2010 LTR 46n7 Oct 2010 OpenURL was devised to solve the appropriate copy problem As online content proliferated it became possible for libraries to obtain the same content from multiple locales directly from publishers and subscription agents indirectly through licensing citation databases that contain full text and increasingly from free online sources Before the advent of OpenURL the only way to know whether a journal was held by the library was to search multiple resources An OpenURL link resolver accepts links from library citation databases sources and returns to the user a menu of choices targets that may include links to full text the library catalog and other related services figure 1 Key to understanding OpenURL is the concept of context sensitive linking links to the same item will be different for users of different libraries and are dependent on the library s collections This issue of Library Technology Reports provides practicing librarians with real world examples and strategies for improving resolver usability and functionality in their own institutions Topics Covered in this Issue Include Improving the Resolver Menu Digging into the Data The Future of OpenURL E-Discovery Tools and Applications in Modern Libraries de Smet, Egbert,Dhamdhere, Sangeeta,2016-07-13 Technology has revolutionized the ways in which libraries store share and access information As digital resources and tools continue to advance so too do the opportunities for libraries to become more efficient and house more information E Discovery Tools and Applications in Modern Libraries presents critical research on the digitization of data and how this shift has impacted knowledge discovery storage and retrieval This publication explores several emerging trends and concepts essential to electronic discovery such as library portals responsive websites and federated search technology The timely research presented within this publication is designed for use by librarians graduate level students technology developers and researchers in the field of library and information science Library Services

Platforms American Library Association, Marshall Breeding, 2015 The genre of library services platforms helps libraries manage their collection materials and automate many aspects of their operations by addressing a wider range of resources and taking advantage of current technology architectures compared to the integrated library systems that have previously dominated. This issue of Library Technology Reports explores this new category of library software including its functional and technical characteristics. It highlights the differences with integrated library systems which remain viable for many libraries and continue to see development along their own trajectory. This report provides an up to date assessment of these products including those that have well established track records as well as those that remain under development. The relationship between library services platforms and discovery services is addressed. The report does not provide detailed listings of features of each product but gives a general overview of the high level organization of functionality, the adoption patterns relative to size, types and numbers of libraries that have implemented them and how these libraries perceive their performance. This seminal category of library technology products has gained momentum in recent years and is positioned to reshape how libraries acquire, manage and provide access to their

Library Technology

Reports Library Technology Program (American Library Association), 1965 Discoverability in the Academic Library Matt Borg, 2014-10 Discoverability in the Academic Library examines cultural changes associated with discoverability, how web scale discovery impacts information literacy, teaching and how we can design systems to elicit delight and joy for our users

Web-scale Discovery Services Joanne Lustig, 2011 We've long said that search isn't the problem, findability is. Information management functions have struggled to find optimal solutions for enterprise search and federated search to help their clients identify and make the best use of the premium content purchased on their behalf. A new breed of content technology tool referred to as web scale discovery services takes search to a new level and is increasingly being adopted by libraries to enable swift identification of an organization's licensed and proprietary information via a centralized repository. This report sheds light on the new world of web scale discovery services and examines the place and potential these services have for information management functions. It includes: An overview of web scale discovery and library centered search, a comparison of web scale discovery to federated search, a landscape comparison of the four leading web scale discovery services (EBSCO Discovery Service, Ex Libris Primo, OCLC WorldCat Local, and Serials Solutions Summon), Discovery Service Drivers, benefits and caveats of web scale discovery services, Considerations for implementation, Imperatives for information managers who are evaluating or considering implementation of web scale discovery services, Publisher description
