Subject Guide to Books in Print, 2001 Moving Forward in the Study of Temperament and Early Education Outcomes
Cynthia L. Smith, David J. Bridgett, 2020-06-29 This book furthers understanding of how child temperament is linked to educational outcomes through mediating and moderating factors As the importance of socio emotional development for educational outcomes is increasingly recognized understanding the influence that children's temperament which includes their emotional reactivity and regulation of emotions cognitions and behaviors can have on educational factors such as school readiness and academic achievement is crucial First the chapters in this book examine pathways connecting temperament with educational outcomes for example one study reports that toddler negative affect predicted executive functioning which then predicted achievement at age six The second way that chapters in this book examine links between temperament and education is by identifying factors that make associations between temperament and educational outcomes more salient for example findings from one study show that shyness and negative emotion were more strongly associated with lower academic achievement only when children received fewer than nine hours of sleep each night highlighting the importance of sleep By examining pathways through which temperament exerts effects on educational outcomes i.e. mediators or factors that modify associations between temperament and educational outcomes i.e. moderators the potential for interventions aimed at improving early educational outcomes can be fully realized This book was originally published as a special issue of Early Education and Development

Handbook of Child Psychology and Developmental Science, Ecological Settings and Processes, 2015-04-06 The essential reference for human development theory updated and reconceptualized The Handbook of Child Psychology and Developmental Science a four volume reference is the field defining work to which all others are compared First published in 1946 and now in its Seventh Edition the Handbook has long been considered the definitive guide to the field of developmental science Volume 4 Ecological Settings and Processes in Developmental Systems is centrally concerned with the people conditions and events outside individuals that affect children and their development To understand children's development it is both necessary and desirable to embrace all of these social and physical contexts Guided by the relational developmental systems metatheory the chapters in the volume are ordered them in a manner that begins with the near proximal contexts in which children find themselves and moving through to distal contexts that influence children in equally compelling if less immediately manifest ways The volume emphasizes that the child's environment is complex multi dimensional and structurally organized into interlinked contexts children actively contribute to their development the child and the environment are inextricably linked and contributions of both child and environment are essential to explain or understand development Understand the role of parents other family members peers and other adults teachers coaches mentors in a child s development Discover the key neighborhood community and institutional settings of human development Examine the role of activities work and media in child and adolescent development Learn about the role of medicine law government war and disaster culture and history in contributing to the processes of human development The scholarship within this volume and as well across the four volumes of this edition illustrate that developmental science is in the midst of a very exciting period There is a paradigm shift that involves increasingly greater understanding of how to describe explain and optimize the course of human life for diverse individuals living within diverse contexts This Handbook is the definitive reference for educators policy makers researchers students and practitioners in human development psychology sociology anthropology and neuroscience

Human Development Robert V. Kail, John C. Cavanaugh, 1996 Kail and Cavanaugh tell the story of the life span in a narrative that is intuitive and holistic eliminating the redundancy of describing the life span via the traditional 5 x 3 of similar organizational structure used by many texts for the course The book's four part structure reflects early childhood the school years the working raising children years and later life a structure that makes sense to students and more accurately depicts the developmental process The author's four part structure reflects the emerging view in several disciplines that development needs to be viewed in larger segments to reflect both the reality of large individual differences not all five year olds are the same and the linkages across the life span of such domains as memory language perception etc To reflect these issues the text includes age specific chapters where essential prenatal development adolescence entering adulthood middle age later life and more topical chapter where appropriate to reflect the continuity of development entering the social world the school years relationships work in adulthood and dying and bereavement
