

Chapter 5. Language

Earth's heterogeneous collection of languages is one of its most obvious examples of cultural diversity. Estimates of distinct languages in the world range from 2,000 to 4,000. Including the 10 largest ones, altogether only about 100 languages are spoken by at least 5 million people, and another 70 by between 2 million and 5 million people.

Key Issues

1. Where are English-language speakers distributed?
2. Why is English related to other languages?
3. Where are other language families distributed?
4. Why do people preserve local languages?

(149)

Language is a system of communication through speech. Many languages also have a literary tradition, or a system of written communication. The lack of written record makes it difficult to document the distribution of many languages. Countries designate at least one language as their official language. A country with more than one official language may require all public documents to be in all languages.

We start our study of the geographic elements of cultural values with language in part because it is the means through which other cultural values, such as religion and ethnicity, are communicated. The study of language follows logically from migration, because the contemporary distribution of languages around the world results largely from past migrations of peoples. The final section of the chapter discusses contradictory trends of scale in language. On the one hand, English has achieved an unprecedented globalization. On the other hand, people are trying to preserve local diversity in language. The global distribution of languages results from a combination of two geographic processes—interaction and isolation. The Indo-European language family developed as a result of migration and subsequent isolation of people that can only be reconstructed through linguistic and archaeological theories.

Key Issue 1. Where Are English-Language Speakers Distributed?

- Origin and diffusion of English
- Dialects of English

A language originates at a particular place and diffuses to other locations through the migration of its speakers.

Origin and Diffusion of English

English is spoken fluently by one-half billion people, more than any language except for Mandarin. Whereas nearly all Mandarin speakers are clustered in one country—China—English speakers are distributed around the world.

English Colonies

The contemporary distribution of English speakers around the world exists because the people of England migrated with their language when they established colonies during the past four centuries.

(150)

English first diffused west from England to North America in the seventeenth century. Similarly, the British took control of Ireland in the seventeenth century, South Asia in the mid-eighteenth century, the South Pacific in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries, and southern Africa in the late nineteenth century. More recently, the United States has been responsible for diffusing English to several places.
