Weapons of Mass Destruction and US Foreign Policy Michelle Bentley, 2014-03-14 This book examines the use of concepts specifically weapons of mass destruction WMD in US foreign policy discourse Current analysis of WMD definition has made headway into identifying the repercussions that the conceptual conflation of such diverse weapons typically understood as a reference to nuclear biological and chemical weapons has for international security While the concept assumes these weapons are equal the vast disparity between them and their disparity from the conventional weapons from which they are supposedly distinct means this approach is seen as unreflective of reality causing miscalculations in security policy Not least this has highlighted that the issue of WMD definition is a priority concern where this has direct implications for strategy In contrast Weapons of Mass Destruction and US Foreign Policy argues that this approach does not accurately portray conceptual meaning particularly where it overlooks how political language is constructed In demonstrating this the book presents a conceptual history of WMD detailing how this has been defined and used since its emergence into political discourse c 1945 Specifically it argues that definition is an inherently strategic act policymakers have deliberately included or excluded certain weapons and threats from the classification in order to shape foreign policy dialogues As such understanding the WMD concept is not a search for a single interpretation but an analysis that seeks to comprehend what the concept means at any given time especially where this relates to the political circumstances of its use By identifying a variety of ways in which WMD has been defined the book constructs a dynamic view of conceptual meaning that recognises and more importantly explains the inherent diversity in interpretation as the consequence of epistemic and institutional context and the strategic response of policymakers This book will be of much interest to students of Weapons of Mass Destruction US foreign and security policy security studies political narratives and IR

Globalization and WMD Proliferation James A. Russell, James J.

Wirtz,2009-12-04 This edited volume explores the relationship between the accelerating process of globalization and the proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction which is increasingly seen as the pre eminent threat to international security The proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction has traditionally been seen as a function of the security dilemma in the state based international system But the advent of the nuclear supply network pieced together by the Pakistani scientist A Q Khan represented a departure from this model involving a variety of organizations not directly connected to a state This volume assembles an international group of experts in order to assess the relationship between proliferation and globalization to ascertain how contemporary communication transportation and financial networks are facilitating or constraining trade in dangerous contraband The book ultimately seeks to determine whether globalization is fundamentally altering the nature of the proliferation problem particularly the threat that Weapons of Mass Destruction might fall into the hands of terrorists This book will be of much interest to students of nuclear proliferation international security terrorism and IR in general WMD Terrorism Stephen M. weapons of mass destruction and the development and history of their use as well as the human health effects of such weapons. Added references, chapter questions, and the addition of recent terrorist acts to relevant sections all present the modern threat environment and realistic WMD material access and attack capabilities. Given that terrorist weapons and delivery methods are becoming increasingly sophisticated, the book provides a comprehensive current survey of terrorism and weapons of mass destruction. As such, Terrorism and WMDs Third Edition continues to serve as an invaluable resource to students and professionals studying and working in the fields of terrorism, Homeland Security, and emergency response.
