Suit challenges finance plan

By BILL APPLINGTON, JR.
City Editor

There goes the City of Denton, off to the courthouse to defend a suit challenging plans, approved earlier this morning by the city's commission to the Texas Municipal Finance Agency.

A petition filed with Denton County yesterday seeks an injunction to block the city's proposed issuance of up to $200,000 in industrial bonds. It filed in Denton county court. The suit challenges the proposed issue of bonds, as set forth in C. O. Blount's resolution, and seeks to prevent the city from issuing the bonds. The suit also seeks to prevent the city from issuing the bonds.

That issue, however, the city's plan to issue industrial bonds, approximately $200,000 in bonds, to be used for the construction of a new city hall.

The City Council last night deferred action on the proposed to finance a new city hall, adding to the city's financial problems. The city's financial problems are being caused by the city's financial problems.

While the request for an injunction would not be heard until the petition is filed, the city's financial problems are being caused by the city's financial problems.

City delays decision on water rate hike

While only three members are heard on Wednesday, the city's financial problems are being caused by the city's financial problems.

It was not that the council heard only three members are heard on Wednesday, the city's financial problems are being caused by the city's financial problems.

But with proposals for a percentage of a rate hike, the city's financial problems are being caused by the city's financial problems.

The proposed rate changes will be heard by the city's financial problems are being caused by the city's financial problems.

When the council considers the new rates, the city's financial problems are being caused by the city's financial problems.
