

Level 1: Understanding and Eliminating Distortion

Context will always influence what we see and what we hear. In the following section, we will explore how to identify and eliminate these influences. Remember that the goal here is to see what is really there, bypassing any preexisting biases or filters that may distort our perception.

The figure above shows that context influences what we see. In this figure, the two blue lines are identical. However, the blue line on the left is surrounded by a red square, while the blue line on the right is surrounded by a green square. As a result, the blue line on the left appears longer than the blue line on the right, suggesting that surroundings affect our perception.

- What — the level of perception that involves high-resolution vision for fine details of the environment.
- What — bottom-up perception that occurs rapidly, with no awareness that requires attention.
- What — bottom-up perception that occurs automatically.
