Randerson explores a series of meteorological art projects from the 1960s to the present that draw on sources ranging from dynamic technological and physical systems to indigenous cosmology. Randerson finds a precursor to today's meteorological art in 1960s artworks that were weather driven and infused with the new sciences of chaos and indeterminacy and she examines work from this period by artists including Hans Haacke, Fujiko Nakaya and Aotearoa New Zealand kinetic sculptor Len Lye. She looks at live experiences of weather in art in particular Fluxus performance and contemporary art that makes use of meteorological data streams and software. She describes the use of meteorological instruments including remote satellite sensors to create affective atmospheres, online projects and participatory performances that create a new form of social meteorology, works that respond directly to climate change, many from the Global South, artist activists who engage with the earth's diminishing cryosphere and a speculative art in the form of quasi scientific experiments. Art's current eddies of activity around the weather, Randerson writes, perturb the scientific hold on facts and offer questions of value in their place.

Weather Matters Bernard Mergen, 2008. A kaleidoscopic book that illuminates our obsession with weather as both physical reality and evocative metaphor, focusing on the ways in which it is perceived, feared, embraced, managed and even marketed.

Research Handbook on Communicating Climate Change David C. Holmes, Lucy M. Richardson, 2020-12-25. Drawing together key frameworks and disciplines that illuminate the importance of communication around climate change, this Research Handbook offers a vital knowledge base to address the urgency of conveying climate issues to a variety of audiences.

Landscape into Eco Art Mark Cheetham, 2018-02-14. Dedicated to an articulation of the earth from broadly ecological perspectives, eco art is a vibrant subset of contemporary art that addresses the widespread public concern with rapid climate change and related environmental issues. In Landscape into Eco Art, Mark Cheetham systematically examines connections and divergences between contemporary eco art, land art of the 1960s and 1970s and the historical genre of landscape painting. Through eight thematic case studies that illuminate what eco art means in practice, reception and history, Cheetham places the form in a longer and broader art historical context. He considers a wide range of media from painting, sculpture and photography to artists' films, video, sound, work, animation and installation and analyzes the work of internationally prominent artists such as Olafur Eliasson, Nancy Holt, Mark Dion and Robert Smithson. In doing so, Cheetham reveals eco art to be a dynamic extension of a long tradition of landscape depiction in the West that boldly enters into today's debates on climate science, government policy and our collective and individual responsibility to the planet. An ambitious intervention into eco criticism and the environmental humanities, this volume provides original ways to understand the issues and practices of eco art in the Anthropocene. Art historians, humanities scholars and lay readers interested in contemporary art and the environment will find Cheetham's work valuable and invigorating.

Climate Change and the New Polar Aesthetics Lisa E. Bloom, 2022-08-08. Lisa E. Bloom considers the way artists, filmmakers and activists in the Arctic and Antarctic use their art to illustrate our current environmental crises and to reconstruct public understanding of them.
