Patricia Lee Gauch,1996-09-01 A Yankee Girl at Gettysburg Alice Turner Curtis,1999 Follow the experiences of Kathleen a spirited 11 year old in the days surrounding the eventful Civil War Battle at Gettysburg The Star of Gettysburg Joseph Alexander Altsheler,1926 The Long Road to Gettysburg Jim Murphy,1992 A description of the Battle of Gettysburg as seen through the eyes of nineteen year old Confederate lieutenant John Dooley and seventeen year old Union soldier Thomas Galway Children at the Battle of Gettysburg Robert Jones,2010-08 The children of the 19th century were no different than today s kids They looked forward to summer the end of the school year playing with their friends and enjoying the pleasant weather However it wasn t all fun most still had their daily chores to do just as they did during the rest of the year

For some they even had more to do because living in Gettysburg meant that there was a good chance they were from a family which had either a farm or an orchard In 1863 America s Civil War between the Northern and Southern states was in its third year Most of the fighting was taking place in the south so Gettysburg and its 2400 residents were spared the devastation which came along with the battles They were truly aware of the ongoing war Many fathers sons and brothers answered the call when President Abraham Lincoln asked the Northern states as he did of Pennsylvania to support the Union cause For the children of Gettysburg the summer of 1863 would not be their normal summer Since the war began there were always rumors that the Confederates were coming Now it was no longer a rumor they were actually coming Young Willie and his sister Marie couldn t really understand the war and thought that these arriving strangers would bring some excitement to their quiet little town For others such as Jennie Wade and Tillie Pierce they could do without it Johnny Ryerson a young boy from Virginia would be forced to look at the war from the other side He too would like to enjoy a summer of fun but that was something he had never experienced Now due to a series of unusual circumstances it looked unlikely that he ever would There is one thing that these children and others have in common it would indeed be their Unforgettable Summer The Star of Gettysburg Joseph A. Altsheler,2004-06 Harry leaning against a bush fell into a light doze from which Dalton aroused him bye and bye

But the habit of war made him awake fully and instantly Every faculty was alive He arose to his feet and saw that Lee and Jackson were just parting A faint moon shone over the Wilderness revealing but little of the great army which lay in its thickets     We Were There at the Battle of Gettysburg Alida Sims Malkus, Earl S.
