Introduction

This scheme of work is designed to explore the play Metamorphosis by Steven Berkoff and can be used alongside the AQA course. The scheme of work explores the play practically and makes links to the AQA exam. All lessons are designed to be delivered as double lessons. The scheme of work assumes that you will have already explored physical theatre with the class.

Lesson 1

Learning outcomes

Students will have:

- Explored the opening of Metamorphosis through practical work
- Examined the differences between Berkoff and Kafka
- Developed a clear understanding of Physical Theatre through practical exploration.

Starter

Recap on prior learning – what do we mean by physical theatre?

Explain that they will be exploring how physical theatre can be used to convey emotions. Explain Milli-Grab-Tab to the class; tell them that you will be calling out emotions, and as a group they must create a physical symbol which captures this emotion. Highlight that they are not trying to show the emotion through a scene, but a symbol in which they are all involved. Give a demonstration of the word ‘Protection’. Class them Milli-Grab-Tab using the three emotions below, the brackets denote the number in the group.

- 1 Fear (4)
- 2 Joy (2)
- 3 Comfort (3)

Main content

Split class into groups of approximately four. Ask each group to look around the classroom at the pictures you have found of Victorian families (my suggestion is putting these up around the room before the class enter the room). In groups they need to come up with 4 words to describe the family.

Ask groups to create a tableau that shows a Victorian Family – encourage groups to not just copy the pictures around the room but to create their own interpretation, this should be inspired by the four words they decided on.

Spotlight each of the images – discuss each – what words come to the audience’s minds as they look at it? Are they similar words that the groups chose?

Discuss this generation and time period – how was life different? How was society and the roles of family members different to today’s society?

In the same groups look at pictures of the beetles on the walls. (I would have these already up on the wall in a different area of the classroom.) Again, they need to come up with four words that describe the beetle.

Ask groups to create an image of a beetle that somehow reflects their four chosen words.

Ask the groups to discuss the image of the beetle that they have created – how could they bring this to life using movement and sound? What sounds do beetles make? It may be worth having a video clip ready to show them, if necessary. Groups to now add movement and sound, the beetle should be static in location but should have symbolic movement.

Ask the class to do a final run through of their beetle, this should involve them holding the image for 5 seconds, then bringing it to life for 10 seconds.

Class performance and discussion of beetles – what was effective about the bringing to life of the beetle?

Vickie Smith is an Assistant Head Teacher and teacher of Drama at Chichester High School. She has been teaching drama for 20 years and teaches at all levels. Vickie is also a GCSE and GCSE drama examiner.

Resources

- Pictures of beetles and Victorian families (there are lots available online)
- Opening of script - The Metamorphosis.

- Milli - Milling (walking) around the room
- Grab - Grabbing the number of people the teacher calls out
- Tab - Creating a tableau of the word said by the teacher.

Time Briton Hadden,1989 City Stage Mike Ingham,Xu Xi,2005-06-01

City Stage is an anthology of recent Hong Kong English language drama written for Hong Kong performers and audiences All the plays were written in the last ten years and so capture and reflect the fast developing multiculturalism of the Hong Kong scene a somewhat paradoxical phenomenon in view of the 1997 return to China Mainland sovereignty The richness and diversity of the subject matter the wide range of theatre styles from the naturalistic to the highly stylized and quite simply the engaging quality of the dramatic writing all make this anthology both an essential adjunct to the 2001 prose fiction and poetry collection City Voices and at the same time a ground breaking independent record of an incredibly fertile period in Hong Kong s recent creative life history Thematically speaking whilst all plays have their unique voice and subject matter it is accurate to say that the quest for personal and communal identity is a theme that goes to the heart of all present selections The anthology is important in that it epitomizes the increasing interconnectedness of previously segregated facets of Hong Kong culture indicating the very welcome tendency towards more open dialogue between Chinese and non Chinese practitioners and audiences The anthology contains the complete texts of the shorter plays and strategically selected excerpts from the longer plays All the texts in this collection were written as English language versions for performance rather than literary translations although for some a Chinese language text was also written
