The Career Development Quarterly, 2002 Building Web Applications with Spring MVC Koushik Kothagal, 2014

Packt video courses are designed to cover the breadth of the topic in short, hands on task based videos. Each course is divided into short, manageable sections so you can watch the whole thing or jump to the bit you need. The focus is on practical instructions and screencasts showing you how to get the job done. This video course introduces you to web application development with the Spring MVC framework starting with the basics of Spring MVC and progressively leading to more advanced concepts. Before you dive deep into the code the step by step tutorial follows a certain hierarchy in its planning phase such as incorporating a product catalogue and then developing the user registration page functionality prior to creating a shopping cart that helps you place orders. The build up of concepts is gradual and the complexity increases gradually throughout the video helping you get to grips with the technology quickly and effectively. This course is ideal for budding developers who want to write Java web applications using Spring MVC. The course assumes some familiarity with basic web application development and core Spring framework concepts but assumes no prior knowledge of Spring MVC.

Resource description page Proceedings, the Irish Signals and Systems Conference 2004 Sakir Sezer, Sean McLoone, Dr. Uwe Krüger, 2004

Over the past 12 years ISSC has been a major forum for engineers and young researchers in Ireland on communications control and DSP. The conference has established itself as one of the premier conferences in Ireland addressing all aspects of signals and systems including design, implementation, algorithms, modelling and performance. This conference continued this tradition under the auspices of the IEE and for the first time the ISSC conference proceedings are published by the IEE and indexed by INSPEC.
