INTRODUCTION

BRIEF BIOGRAPHY OF CHINUA ADEBE

Chinua Achebe was born in 1930 in the Igbo town of Ogidi in southeastern Nigeria. Although he grew up in a traditional Igbo community, Achebe's parents were Christians who encouraged him to read and write. Achebe studied at the University of Ibadan and at the University of Cambridge, where he received his Ph.D. in 1954. After returning to Nigeria, he became a teacher and a writer. In 1958, he moved to London to work for the Nigerian Broadcasting Service. There, he began writing his first novels, including Things Fall Apart, which became a massive success. Achebe has written many other novels, including Arrow of God (1964), Beasts of the Earth (1972), and There Was a Crooked Man (1976). He has also written plays, poetry, and nonfiction, including There Is No Evil: An African Life (2006) and There Is No Evil: An African Life (2006).

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Things Fall Apart was written in 1958, during the early days of independence in Nigeria. At the time, Nigeria was still a colony of Great Britain, and the British government was pressuring the Igbo people to give up their traditional ways of life. Achebe's novel is set during this period of colonialism, when Igbo people were forced to give up their traditional ways of life and adopt Western ways of life. The novel shows the impact of this colonialism on the Igbo people, particularly on Okonkwo, a man who is forced to give up his traditional ways of life and adopt Western ways of life. The novel also shows the impact of this colonialism on the Igbo people, particularly on Okonkwo, a man who is forced to give up his traditional ways of life and adopt Western ways of life.

RELATED LITERATURE

Other books written during the same time as Things Fall Apart include Arrow of God (1964) by Chinua Achebe, Beasts of the Earth (1972) by Chinua Achebe, and There Was a Crooked Man (1976) by Chinua Achebe. These books all explore the impact of colonialism on the Igbo people, particularly on Okonkwo, a man who is forced to give up his traditional ways of life and adopt Western ways of life.

After the Nigerian War of Independence, Nigeria became a republic, and the Igbo people began to demand greater autonomy. This led to the Biafran War of 1967-1970, in which the Igbo people fought for independence. The novel There Was a Crooked Man (1976) by Chinua Achebe, and the book There Is No Evil: An African Life (2006) by Chinua Achebe, both explore the impact of this colonialism on the Igbo people.
