Resounding the Sublime Miranda Eva Stanyon,2021-05-07 What does the sublime sound like Harmonious discordant noisy rustling silent Miranda Eva Stanyon rereads and resounds this crucial aesthetic category in English and German literatures of the long eighteenth century from a musical perspective and shows how sonorous sublimes lay at the heart of a central and transformative discourse For Enlightenment and Romantic era listeners the musical sublime represented a sonic encounter of the most extreme kind one that tested what humans were capable of feeling imagining thinking and therefore becoming The sublime and music have not always sung from the same hymn sheet Stanyon observes She charts an antagonistic intimacy between the two from the sublime s rise to prominence in the later seventeenth century through the upheavals associated with Kant in the late eighteenth century and their reverberations in the nineteenth Offering readings of canonical texts by Longinus Dryden Burke Klopstock Herder Coleridge De Quincey and others alongside lesser known figures she shows how the literary sublime was inextricable from musical culture from folksongs and ballads to psalmody polyphonal sacred music and opera Deeply interdisciplinary Resounding the Sublime draws literature into dialogue with sound studies musicology and intellectual and cultural history to offer new perspectives on the sublime as a phenomenon which crossed media disciplines and cultures An interdisciplinary study of sound in history the book recovers varieties of the sublime crucial for understanding both the period it covers and the genealogy of modern and postmodern aesthetic discourses In resounding the sublime Stanyon reveals a phenomenon which was always already resonant The sublime emerges not only as the aesthetic of the violently powerful a rational or unrepresentable but as a variegated discourse with competing dissonant harmonious rustling noisy and silent strains one in which music and sound illustrate deep divisions over issues of power reason and representation
